TRAFFIC JAMS MAR START OF PARKING LAW

Irate Motorists Protest Against Long Tie-Up on Avenue.

MANY INTERSECTIONS THROWN INTO CHAOS

Federal Workers and Doctors Hit by New Regulation; Police Aid Increased.

Shrieking horns, whining brakes and imprecations of an irate motoring populace sounded a protest yesterday for the muddled traffic situation created in inauguration of the drastic new zoning regulations.

Traffic was snarled in almost hopeless confusion at downtown rush hours, particularly in the wake of the 4:30 o'clock Government closing hour. Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street northwest, the neck of the downtown bottle, was jammed for blocks in the late afternoon.

Two impromptu checks were made by disinterested observers on the time elapsed for a machine to negotiate the scant distance between the kiosk by The Washington Post to the opposite side of Fourteenth street. One check showed five minutes and the other four.

Chaos Reigned Elsewhere.

Chaos reigned at other intersections, but the actual flow of traffic, as snail-paced as it appeared to be at recurrent intervals, proved no less a hardship than the inconvenience of countless motorists in being forced by the new regulation to seek parking space, often many blocks away from their offices.

Government employes particularly were affected as police invoked the new rule banning parking of more than an hour's duration from 9:30 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night throughout Zone No. 1, the heart of the downtown section, bounded by New York avenue, Seventh street, Pennsylvania avenue and the Treasury Building.

A major feature of the new regulations proved to be the prohibition against any parking in Zone No. 1 from 8 to 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Only one exception is allowed. It is to permit only the loading and unloading of passengers or merchandise during this hour and one-half.

Extra Police Give Aid.

Twenty-five policemen from the Traffic Bureau and nineteen others from the First Precinct were placed on extra duty to patrol the zone and warn motorists against violations. They were kept busy, but confined their activities exclusively to cautioning and made no arrests in conformity with a policy to be pursued for the first few days.

Not even taxicabs were allowed to remain parked at their stands during the restricted hour and one-half. Considerable cruising was noted, and many motorists, both public and private, nosed into curb spaces, remained at their wheels, and promptly at 9:30 o'clock parked their cars.

Officials concerned with the success of the new regulations, which recently were voted into effect by the District Commissioners, expressed themselves as pleased with results of the opening day.

Inspectors Make Tour.

Inspector E. W. Brown, head of the Traffic Bureau, who with Capt. B. A. Lamb, his assistant, made a tour of inspection over the zone, explained that while the violations appeared numerous, many of the machines bore out-of-town tags and a number of other cars had been parked overnight.

He said he also noted that a number of trucks, mainly of the light delivery type, violated the regulations

ROLLICKING RENO

4,000 Divorces in '32 Set as Goal by Reno

City of 18,000, Feeling Threat of Arkansas and Idaho, Bids for Wealthy Folk by Opening Wide Her Doors to Gambling.

Reno, Nev., April 22.—When, on March 20, Reno's gambling halls opened their doors and threw away the keys, Mayor E. E. Roberts, picturesque survivor of the old days of the West, stood beside a faro table, heaved a deep sigh of satisfaction, and told the world:

"Now we can do lawfully just what Nevada always has done under cover. It's nonsense trying to regulate people's morals by law."

Thus he put the return of open gambling on high grounds—a blow struck at hypocrisy and cant.

"For eight years," he declared, "I have tried to make this town a place where everybody can do what they please, just so they don't interfere with other people's rights."

Which was all very well, and made good reading in the Eastern papers. But there's another side to it, and one that, out here in the sagebrush, is equally important—more so, maybe—for it's an economic question, economics don't respond to phrases.

For instance, it is interesting to note that both in 1925 and 1927 the Nevada Legislature had gambling bills before it—bills to legalize such games as faro, roulette, Klondike, fantan, twenty-one and something called "Big Injun," which the East has never heard of.

Both bills provided license fees and both, in their main features, stuck closely to the lines the present open-gambling measure follows.

They were voted down. It wasn't until 1931, in fact, when Iowa and Arkansas threatened to take away Reno's monopoly on quick divorces that a gambling bill went through the legislature.

Then it was passed with only three dissenting votes among the 54 members in both houses. Significantly, there went through with it the amended divorce statutes, cutting the period of residence from three months to six weeks.

From that you might deduce, if you are skeptically inclined, that Nevada is determined to keep its marriage-abrogation business if it can—and, if other States can cut down their requirements to meet the Sagebrush State's, why then Nevada can provide some other bid for favor—such as gambling.

And that would be a fair deduction. For Reno—and Reno is Nevada, being the only city in the State of more

SPAIN'S REGIME RECOGNIZED BY UNITED STATES

Monarchy's Ambassador Calls to Say Farewell at White House.

NEWS OF U. S. ACTION FAVORABLY RECEIVED

Former King Alfonso Goes About London Alone; Is Cheered by Crowds.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The Republic of Spain, although barely two weeks old, was formally recognized by the United States yesterday. The American Ambassador, Irwin B. Laughlin, it was announced at the State Department, had called at the ministry of state in Madrid and so informed the provisional government of President Alcala Zamora.

Like the other nations that have extended recognition, the United States is satisfied that the new republic is thoroughly in control of the country; that it is determined to fulfill its international obligations, and that it will, in due course, regularize its status by holding popular elections.

While Secretary of State Stimson was giving out the announcement, a tall, distinguished-looking Spaniard arrived at the White House to say farewell. He was Don Alejandro Padilla, for 25 years a career diplomat in the Spanish foreign service, and for four and a half years his country's ambassador here. A close friend of King Alfonso XIII, he resigned his post here when that monarch was dethroned.

Presents Book to Hoover.

Senor Padilla presented President Hoover with a handsomely bound book containing the story of the Seville exposition, an enterprise which the President, when Secretary of Commerce, did much to help.

While announcement has been made in Madrid that Salvador de Madariaga, famous writer, lecturer and diplomat, is slated to be the new Spanish Ambassador in Washington, the American Government has not yet been asked whether he would be persona grata.

Ordinarily a country which is about to send an ambassador or a minister to another country first sounds out the government in that country as to whether the diplomat is acceptable. This is done in advance so as to avoid possible embarrassment if it happens that the diplomat is not acceptable.

Madariaga Highly Regarded.

There was every indication yesterday, however, that Senor de Madariaga is highly regarded by the American Government. If he does come to Washington, he will find in the Diplomatic Corps here another distinguished author—Ambassador Rene Claudel, of France.

Nearly all of the nations of Europe and South America have now recognized the new Republic of Spain, Great Britain having extended recognition just ahead of the United States.

Ambassador Laughlin, it was made known yesterday, will continue to represent the United States in Madrid.

Cabinet Told of Recognition.

Madrid, April 22 (A.P.).—News that the United States had recognized the Spanish republic caused a generally favorable impression today in government circles and among the people.

In announcing the fact to the cabinet, Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux said:

"The United States withheld recognition, naturally enough, until after the Spanish-American and European countries closest to Spain, also England, had recognized us. Now the United States has recognized us because of the good reports on the republic sent by Ambassador Laughlin."

The announcement of recognition was received by the government at about the same time the American Embassy got word from the Department of State in Washington. It is not known yet whether Ambassador Laughlin and other diplomats accredited to the former monarchy will now present their new credentials to the republic.

CANNON AGAIN TRIES TO BLOCK NYE QUIZ

Challenges Body's Authority to Probe Use of Funds to Fight Smith.

(Associated Press.)

A new attempt by Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to block a Senate investigation of his 1928 anti-Smith campaign expenditures was revealed in letters made public yesterday by the Senate campaign funds committee.

Bishop Cannon challenged the committee's authority to investigate his use of $65,000 turned over to him by E. C. Jameson, of New York, to oppose the election of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential candidate.

A similar move by the churchman last year prevented the Senate lobby committee from making an investigation. Bishop Cannon walked out on that committee and refused to answer its questions, claiming it was exceeding its rights.

Later, during the last session of Congress, the Senate adopted a resolution by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, to give the campaign funds committee the authority which the lobby committee lacked.

That resolution, Bishop Cannon contended in the letters made public yesterday, attempted to confer "purely judicial powers" upon a legislative committee.

He added the resolution attempted to "authorize your committee to assume the functions of a grand jury, first by inquiring into violations of any provisions of the Federal corrupt practices act and, second, to investigate a fraudulent conversion to private uses of any campaign funds."

The Supreme Court has held, Bishop Cannon said, that investigation of such matters is "for the courts and not for Congress."

Chairman Nye plans a meeting of his committee within the next few days to consider Bishop Cannon's contention. He has been unable so far, however, to muster a quorum of the investigating group.

The committee also made public correspondence between Mr. Nye, Bishop Cannon and the bishop's physician, Dr. R. L. Sexton, concerning the churchman's physical condition and ability to appear before the committee.

Mr. Nye, in a letter to Dr. Sexton, referred to press reports of Bishop Cannon's appearances before various church organizations and said "these things tend to make it appear the bishop is merely making sport of the committee."

Bishop Cannon, replying, described his condition in detail and said his physician advised him an appearance before the committee and the work preliminary thereto might have serious effect on his health. The churchman denied he was "making sport" of the committee.

In a letter later, however, the bishop asked if the committee decided it had authority to continue its investigation, that he be allowed to appear to argue the legal question involved.

"While my physician here indicates I may not be strong enough to take up the work of examining in detail my bank accounts and my files, and preparing for an appearance before the committee on the factual matters involved in the investigation," Bishop Cannon said, "yet he thinks it is possible I may be able to meet the committee with or without counsel for the purpose of this legal discussion any time after May 11."

DELIBERATE LIE LAID TO SHOUSE BY G. O. P. HEAD

Fess Denies Purchase of Magazine Attacking Raskob's Religion.

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS SEEK $1,000,000 FUND

Money Would Pay Debt and Finance Work Before Campaign.

(United Press.)

Senator Simeon D. Fess, representative, of Ohio, in a formal statement as chairman of the Republican national committee, yesterday accused Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, of telling "a deliberate lie" and offered $10,000 for proof of the truth of Shouse's alleged statement.

According to Mr. Fess, Shouse told the Democratic Club of San Francisco last week that the Republican national committee had purchased 10,000,000 copies of a magazine containing an article attacking the religious affiliations of Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee.

Fess' version of the incident was that Shouse made the alleged statement at the end of a set speech to the Democratic Club at a time when the Democratic leader believed his remarks were no longer being broadcast, but when as a matter of fact they were still going over the air.

Statement Termed Contemptible.

"Shouse, believing himself safe from discovery, stated the Republican national committee had purchased 10,000,000 copies for distribution of a magazine article that made reference to the religious affiliations of John J. Raskob, Fess said. "This charge was a deliberate lie and its falsity must or could have been known to Shouse when he made it."

"In view of Mr Shouse's 'confidential smearing' statement and my denial of his false charge, I will donate $10,000 to Mr. Shouse's Democratic publicity bureau if he can prove that at any time the Republican national committee has either ordered or purchased or distributed any of the magazines, or the article in the magazine, to which he referred," Fess declared. "The contemptible and untruthful statement made by Mr. Shouse in San Francisco should advise all people who hear him in the future just how much reliance they can place in any statement of his."

The Fess challenge is expected to stir the embers of the religious controversies which blazed up in the 1928 campaign when Alfred E. Smith, like Raskob, a Catholic, was the Democratic presidential candidate. At that time there were Democratic accusations that the Republicans were attempting to inflame religious bigotry against Smith in the South and elsewhere. One of the aftermaths of that campaign was the effort to force Bishop James Cannon, jr., to give an accounting for expenditure of $65,300 contributed to him by E. C. Jameson, of New York, for anti-Smith work in the South.

Newspaper Account Is Quoted.

Fess quoted a San Francisco newspaper's account of Shouse's alleged remarks as follows:

"Democratic tongues buzzed in San Francisco yesterday over the 'religious issue' * * * Jouett Shouse, right-hand man of Chairman Raskob, was the cause. He brought it up at the end of his programed speech at the dinner of the Democratic Club Wednesday night.

"'Now that I am no longer on the air,' Shouse said confidentially to the diners.

"But Mr. Shouse was mistaken. The 'mike' was still broadcasting his extempore remarks. Mr. Shouse then

FOURTH OF LORTON FUGITIVES IS CAUGHT

Lawrence Sullivan, City's "Literary Bandit," Taken Without Struggle.

Lawrence Sullivan, Washington's "literary bandit," was recaptured last night near Alexandria, Va., bringing to a close the intensive search which began Tuesday after he and three other inmates made a daring escape from the Lorton Reformatory.

Paul Calvin Embrey, 20-year-old desperado, was caught early yesterday afternoon. William Wright and Robert Wells, the other two inmates who made the break in the auto of John Bischoff, Lorton official and former husband of the slain Vivian Gordon, were recaptured shortly after their machine blew a tire near Accotink, Va., and the quarter took to their heels.

Both Embrey and Sullivan were seized as they walked along the highway, the former on River Road, about 2 miles south of Alexandria, and Sullivan on the Fort Humphreys road, 4 miles south of Alexandria. Neither offered any resistance nor were they armed.

Sergt. Edgar Sims, who was patroling the road, recognized Sullivan and took him into custody without a struggle. It was under similar circumstances that, several hours earlier, Carl McIntosh, Fairfax County policeman, encountered Embrey, whom he recognized by the white sweater and regulation prison overalls.

Without stopping, McIntosh continued down the road and picked up two Lorton guards who were scouring the vicinity for the two fugitives. The trio returned and their man surrendered calmly.

Exhausted and bleeding after his 24-hour flight through fields and underbrush from armed guards and bloodhounds, Embrey, considered the most desperate of the four and who was serving a 14-year sentence for the holdup of a Mount Vernon Savings Bank messenger, told his captors he was glad they had won and that it was all over.

Russia's Test Cargo Of Lumber Due Today

Providence, R. I., April 22 (A.P.).—Russia's "test cargo" of lumber from Soviet forests is expected to reach here tomorrow morning. A radiogram today informed the A. C. Dutton Lumber Co., local consignee, that the Finnish freighter Anversoles, which was chartered for the cargo, was then 130 miles from Providence.

A protest against admission of the lumber, unless it can be shown that convict labor was not used in its production, has been forecast by American Lumbermen's Associations.

D. A. R. PARTY WELCOMED TO WHITE HOUSE

Cheery Greeting Is Given 3,000 by President and Mrs. Hoover.

FORMAL RECEPTION IS COLORFUL EVENT

Congress Centers Its Chief Business Interest on Nominations.

President and Mrs. Hoover were hosts in the White House yesterday afternoon to more than 3,000 delegates and alternates to the fortieth Continental Congress of the D. A. R. in session here, at a special reception in honor of patriotic leaders from all parts of the country.

Two hundred pages attending the D. A. R. Congress, upon special request of Mrs. Hoover, acted as a reception committee and formed a picturesque touch to the event in their white costumes and gold and white sashes.

The President and Mrs. Hoover were in a most cordial mood and chatted with many of the delegates who were personally known to them, especially those from Iowa and California.

The congress adjourned its sessions in order to visit the White House and delegates were disappointed when the heavy rain prevented them appearing on the White House grounds, as planned, and the reception had to be held indoors.

President, First Lady Receive.

With much of the ceremony of a New Year's morning reception at the White House, President and Mrs. Hoover received the D. A. R. officers and delegates at 4 p. m.

At that hour the Marine Band stationed in the corridor sounded attention and the President and Mrs. Hoover came down the state stairway escorted by Col. Hodges and Capt. Charles Russel Train and four other military and naval aids. The band struck up "Hail to the Chief" as the procession reached the state corridor.

President and Mrs. Hoover stood before the triple windows in the blue room and received first Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart and her national officers and then a long line of white clad pages led by Miss Dorothy Jenkins. These special guests had been escorted by the aids to the red room in advance of the reception.

The President and First Lady shook hands with every member of the congress after each one was presented to them by Capt. Train.

Mrs. Hoover wore a becoming dress of fine golden brown lace over a lighter shade of chiffon and carried when she first came down a large bouquet of yellow roses and purple iris, the gift of the Iowa delegation. When Miss Jenkins, in the name of the pages, presented her with an old fashioned bouquet, Mrs. Hoover laid her other bouquet on a nearby chair. The California delegation also presented her with flowers.

Vice President General Nominated.

After they had been received the delegates went on a tour of inspection of the state rooms on their way out. White House aids, acting as guides, were kept busy answering questions.

Chief interest of the day next to the White House reception centered around the nominations of nine women last night for the seven vacancies in the ranks of vice president general and Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, of Pennsylvania as the single candidate for the office of honorary vice president general. It was pointed out, however, that Mrs. Patton must be elected by a two-thirds vote instead of by a majority even though she is without opposition.

The women placed in nomination for vice presidents general were Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, of Indiana; Mrs. Charles F. Bathrick, of Michigan; Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York; Mrs. James Roundtree, of Texas; Mrs. William Henderson Vaught, of West Virginia; Mrs. Herbert Fay Gaffney, of Georgia; Mrs. Charles E. Herrick, of Illinois; Mrs. James Trottman, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Walter S. Johnson, of Tennessee.

Enthusiastic nominating speeches, the presence of the candidates on the platform, all handsomely gowned, and a small fortune in floral tributes carried by the nominees made last night one of the most colorful sessions of the congress. Before the nominations were made the audience listened to brief reports from State

HIGH WIND WRECKS SCHOOL STEEL WORK

Heavy Girders Torn Loose and Sent Hurtling to Cellar Excavation.

A fine start on what is to be one of Washington's finest high schools was a mass of tangled wreckage last night as the heaviest wind and rain of spring sent part of its superstructure tumbling into the excavation for a cellar.

Workmen were busy last night at the site of the proposed Theodore Roosevelt Junior High School bracing the remainder of the iron girders with cables to prevent them from following the rest of the skeleton into the pit.

The crash came shortly after 7 o'clock. The east end of the super-

Longworth Estate Is Put at $825,000

Real Estate Set at $25,000 and Personal Property at $800,000.

Cincinnati, April 22 (U.P.).—The estate of the late Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives, was estimated at $825,000 by his widow, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who applied in court today to be named administratrix.

The application, received by Judge W. P. Leuders in probate court, estimated real estate at $25,000 and personal property at $800,000.

Joseph H. Assel and Sol Zielonka, former city solicitor, were named appraisers. Mrs. Longworth was named appraiser under her husband's will.

It was pointed out that the estimate of $825,000 is not necessarily an accurate one, and was made only for the purposes of administering the estate.

29 DIE IN BATTLES ON HONDURAN FRONT

Many Wounded as Federals Defeat and Pursue Bands of Rebels.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 22 (A. P.).—At least 29 were killed and many others wounded in sharp skirmishes between the rebels and the Honduran regular troops in several places on the northern coast last night.

The dead included Col. Salvador Canales, one of the rebel leaders. The government troops lost 3 dead and the rebels 26, according to casualty lists reported to the capital today.

Fighting between rebels and government troops continued around Chamelecon. The government troops were holding the rebels, and reinforcements were on the way to aid them. It was impossible to estimate the casualties.

A rebel detachment commanded by Col. Canales was attacked by Federal troops at Guaymas, 8 kilometers from Tela. The government troops were led by Col. Oscar Munguia. They defeated the rebels after two hours fighting. Thirteen rebels besides Col. Canales were killed several wounded and some prisoners were taken, including Capt. Rodolfo Montes.

The government troops lost 3 dead in the battle, including Capt. Constantino Urbina. A few regulars were wounded. The remainder of the rebel group disappeared, pursued by government troops.

A rebel group attempted an attack on Olanchito, but the government troops under Col. Luis Alonzo Lopez anticipated the attack, and routed the rebels after a short skirmish. The rebels left 12 dead and some baggage behind them, including a rubber overcoat on which were initials indicating that it belonged to Gen. Arturo Ordonez, rebel commander.

Many casualties occurred last night in a 3-hour fight when rebel forces attacked Chamelcon on the National

Calvin Coolidge Says:

If one of the results of unemployment is to turn more people to planting a garden, some of the loss from the depression will be retrieved. The waste of land and time to which we as a nation are so addicted will be reduced. Many of our foreign born excel our native stock in raising fruits and vegetables about the home. They are the true disciples of diversification and are not entirely dependent on the pay envelope for supplies.

The garden has more than economic importance. There is something wholesome and refreshing in tilling the soil. It has a cultural value of its own. The earliest creative impulse of the human race turned in that direction. The record goes back to Adam. Directing the growth of plant life into orderly ways gives us a consciousness of working with nature which we can not get from mechanics or commerce. There is a color and fragance in our own flower, a texture and flavor in our own produce, a solace and comfort in our own garden which can not be purchased.

In adversity and in prosperity we are instinctively drawn to the great mother of us all, the soil.

Stories About Clara Bow Cause Publisher's Arrest

Rex Bell, Friend of Actress, Also Bares Plot by Two Men to Blackmail "It" Girl Through Purchase of Coast Paper.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 22 (A.P.).—Frederick H. Girnau, weekly newspaper publisher, was arrested today by the U. S. marshal's office on a Federal grand jury indictment accusing him of four counts of sending obscene literature through the mails in connection with stories purporting to reveal the life of Clara Bow, film star.

At the same time, a report was filed in the sheriff's office in which Rex Bell, friend of the actress, was quoted as saying two men had attempted to obtain money from Miss Bow through him and had used the name of the Coast Reporter, Girnau's newspaper.

There was no mention in the report that Girnau knew the men or had anything to do with them.

The indictment said four articles were published in Girnau's newspaper in March and April. These articles told of alleged incidents in the life of Miss Bow.

Upon his arrest, Girnau said: "I have no fear of the proceedings against me, as all the articles published here were affidavits, sworn to by Daisy De Voe."

Daisy Devoe, or De Boe, her real name, was discharged by Miss Bow last year and later arrested for the alleged theft of money from the actress while serving her as a secretary. Miss De Boe was tried and convicted on one count of grand theft and freed pending outcome of an appeal. She was sentenced to 18 months in the county jail as part of a probation term.

Girnau said he would post bond of $10,000, required by the indictment.

The sheriff's report quoting Bell said the actor told an officer two men who introduced themselves as "Rockwell" and "Jordan" came to Miss Bow's beach home at Malibu and told him they understood the Coast Reporter could be purchased for $15,000. Bell was quoted as saying the man asked for $25,000, of which they would use $15,000 to buy the newspaper and keep $10,000 for themselves.

In this way, the report continued, Miss Bow would be able to keep her name out of the newspaper. Bell said the men visited him several times and on the last occasion deputy sheriffs tried to apprehend them, but they fled in an automobile.

Sterilization of Criminals Becomes Law in Oklahoma

Murray Signs Bill Affecting Men Less Than 67 Years and Women Less Than 47; Action Termed as Protection, Not Punishment.

Oklahoma City, April 22 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray today signed and thus enacted into law a measure passed by the recent Legislature providing for sterilization of third term criminals.

Originating in the House of Representatives, the bill by Dr. J. T. Gray, Stillwater, originally provided for sterilization of insane patients of State institutions. Men less than 67 years and women less than 47 were subject to the operation. The bill was then amended in the Senate to apply to certain "inmates of any other institution supported in whole or in part by the State."

Any third termer in the State penitentiary or reformatory, sentenced for felonies, is subject to the law.

Administration is left to the State board of affairs, which controls all State hospitals and prisons.

"More attention ought to be paid to the criminals than to persons of unsound mind," the governor said.

"Criminality and weaknesses of the brain both unmistakably are due to inheritance."

"Sterilization is not a punishment, but a protection. It carries no stigma or humiliation. It is a humane measure for the best interests of all."

Dr. Gray pointed out that the method of sterilization to be followed in carrying out provisions of the law, "interferes with no blood or nerve supply and produces no physical change."

Medical boards would pass first on criminals and insane persons subject to the law. Appeal to courts also is possible.

Neither Sam Brown, warden of the State prison, nor Dr. G. N. Bilby, State health commissioner, would comment on the unusual provisions of the law but Dr. Bilby expressed disapproval of the method of sterilization provided.

Officials could not say exactly how many persons would be affected by the statute. The prison and reformatory house more than 3,800 persons at present; the insane hospitals about 6,000.

regents of the work of the D. A. R. in their States.

Animated electioneering was in progress in every nook and corner of Constitution Hall last night and the work of the advocates of various nominees could also be noted in the hotels and other places where the delegates assembled. Miss Katherine Nettleton, State regent of Connecticut, was named chairman of the tellers by Mrs. Hobart last night and the election, with balloting by the use of voting machines, will take place all day today.

An appeal for an amendment to existing immigration laws by which Communists and other undesirables may be excluded and deported from this country was made by Representative Thomas Jenkins, of Ohio, one of the speakers at the afternoon session.

The following points were brought out by Representative Jenkins in his remarks: That the quota system of restrictive immigration should be maintained; that national origins is the only fair plan of fixing immigration quotas, and that further legislation to reunite families should be within quotas if it were necessary.

Representative Jenkins also urged that the menace of communism be recognized and restricted and that the quota law be applied to Canada, Mexico and other countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The oder to interpret and apply more stringently the "liable to become public charge" provision of the present immigration law has been followed by material reduction of immigration from Europe, Mr. Jenkins said.

Soviet Menace Is Stressed.

One of the high points of the congress yesterday was the reading by Mrs. Fred C. Morgan, of Maine, chairman of the committee on legislation in the United States Congress, of her report in which she urged a campaign to "arouse the public to the real menace of Soviet dumping."

The committee indorsed findings of the special House committee on Communist activities and advocated legislation to require school teachers to take the oath of allegiance, restriction of immigration from Latin-America and support of military training in schools and universities. The report urged continued non-recognition of Soviet Russia.

A spirited defense of vivisection was made by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming in an address before the congress when he claimed that through experiments with animals the Public Health Service had been able to develop and test toxines to reduce mortality from diptheria. Dr. Cumming warned that "spotted fever" had been discovered recently on the Eastern coast of the United States, but that an official of the Public Health Service had developed a vaccine for this highly fatal disease.

The death rate from typhoid fever in this country has been reduced annually from 100,000 to 5,000, Dr. Cumming reported, while the death rate for diphtheria has been reduced to 6.6 per 100,000 persons. Dr. Cumming urged the D. A. R. to join in the work of reducing infant mortality.

The D. A. R. Magazine, official publication of the society, earned a small profit last year, according to reports made by the editor, Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln, of the District of Columbia, and the national chairman of the magazine, Mrs. James F. Donahue, of Ohio.

Reports Cite Progress.

Progress of patriotic and educational work was shown in reports of chairmen of national committees. Among those who reported were Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, radio committee; Mrs. William Louis Dunne, publicity; Mrs. Penelope J. Allen, preservation of historic spots; Mrs. R. Winston Holt, patriotic lectures and lantern slides, and Mrs. Charles E. Herrick, patriotic education. In this latter report it was shown that the D. A. R. expended more than $75,000 for patriotic education last year in the form of grants and scholarships to schools and colleges.

Other national chairmen reporting yesterday were Mrs. May Montgomery Smith, girl home makers; Miss Myra Hazard, manual for immigrants; Mrs. John Brown Heron, insignia; and Mrs. John W. Chenault, historical and literary reciprocity.

Interesting glimpses of the work of the D. A. R. in the States were shown in regents' reports last night. In sections affected by the drought, State and local D. A. R. cooperated with the Red Cross in relief work and industrial centers the same thorough cooperation has been given to the White House Commission on Employment under Col. Arthur Woods. The Arkansas State regent, Mrs. William H. Arnold, headed the D. A. R. relief work carried on in the stricken section of her State. Despite the stress, there was no loss in membership and the society's financial obligations have been met.

Outstanding features of the State regents' reports were:

California has divided its D. A. R. into two regional councils, north and south, and has been interested in the migratory school system where the schools follow the seasonal child workers.

Colorado helped 32 pupils with student-loan funds.

District Activity Is Reviewed.

The District of Columbia D. A. R. has 59 chapters and 3,646 members, with every activity fully supported. Miss Helen Harman, State regent, stressed the work done by the better films committee and her committee on Sons and Daughters of the Republic with four well maintained clubs within the District. Forty-nine boys were sent to the Y. M. C. A. camp last year. Numerous contributions have been made to objects fostered by the patriotic education committee, including $1,405.50 for 24 scholarships and $1,351.01 to 17 schools.

Louisiana assisted in relief work throughout the Mississippi Valley areas.

Maryland chapters did outstanding work for the D. A. R. State forest at Fort Frederick, and 10,000 native maple sugar trees were planted in the mountains of western Maryland.

Maine has completed a memorial to Gen. Henry Knox, George Washington's Secretary of War, which will be dedicated on July 25.

Two patriotic events of interest will take place today when President General Hobart and members of the national board of management will make a pilgrimage to Falls Church to inspect the famous George Washington tulip tree, selected by the organization to be preserved in accordance with its plan to save one historic tree each year. Experts have started restoring the tree, which scientists say, is 300 years old.

George Washington is said often to have tied his horse to a ring in the tree when he went to Falls Church for church services.

Graves Will Be Marked.

The other patriotic event is the marking of the graves of seven Revolutionary soldiers in Arlington Cemetery. Unveiling of the bronze markers will be under direction of Mrs. Amos A. Fries, chairman. The graves to be marked are those of Charles Pierre L'Enfant, French architect of the City of Washington; John Follin, a sailor of the American Revolution; James House, a colonel of the Western division during the Revolution; Capt. Thomas Mason, Joseph Carlton, Col. John Green, of the Sixth Virginia Volunteers, and Lieut. Col. James McCubbin Lingan.

An editorial, "Welcome to the D. A. R.," which appeared in The Washington Post on Monday, was heartily commended by Mrs. Hobart in the congress yesterday morning. The editorial was read in full to the congress by the official reader and ordered placed in its archives.

Reports Will Continue Today.

Reports of national committees will continue today and voting will be in progress throughout the day. Frederick William Ashley, Chief Assistant Librarian of Congress, will speak on "George Washington in the Library of Congress," and in the afternoon a memorial service will be held for real daughters, charter members, national officers and other notable daughters who died during the year. Wreaths will be placed on the D. A. R. Memorial Monument in the grounds of Constitution Hall and, led by Mrs. Hobart, many delegates will make a pilgrimage to Arlington to place a wreath on the tomb of America's Unknown Soldier.

Two speakers will be heard at night, Capt. John H. Towers, Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department, talking on "Modern Development of Air Craft," while Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, second in command of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, will give an illustrated lecture with films, "With Byrd to the Bottom of the World."

The story of accomplishments of the Society of the Children of the American Revolution was revealed in reports of chairmen of the major committees given at Corcoran Art Gallery.

It was noted that money to the extent of $200 is still being contributed to the kindergarten at Ellis Island. Here the children of the newly arrived alien are entertained and instructed when the mothers are detained for any reason. Mrs. John Mosher, of New York, in charge of that work, reported that dollars and cents can not measure the good that is done.

Tells of Wakefield Work.

Mrs. Thaddeus M. Jones gave a resume of the work at Tamassee, where the society pays the expenses of two girls at the Southern Mountain School in South Carolina which the Daughters of the Revolution founded and maintains. This year's contributions amount to $488. Only those without other means of schooling are taken, and though this is not an orphan's home, it was revealed that most of the girls are without either parent.

She also told of the plans for Wakefield, the birthplace of Washington which the Government is restoring to its orignial design. This year's contribution was nearly $300 for a total of $600, for furnishing the bedroom where Washington was born. Selection of the furniture is in the hands of Mrs. John Kerr of the Washington family, who announced that a bed and crib of the design of that period had been secured through other members of the family. The bed is the gift of Mrs. Sue Wilson Latane, great grand-daughter of William Augustine Washington, who was born at Wakefield. The crib is the gift of Ellen and James Latane, great, great-grandchildren of William Augustine Washington, who was born and still reside on part of the Wakefield estate.

The chronological history of the society was given by Miss Aimee Powell, while Mrs. Fred Dubois spoke of Founders' Day.

Three girls from Tamassee School completed the program—Mayme McEachern, gave a talk on Tamassee and schoolwork, Neel Turner gave a reading, and Floride Green spoke on "My Life Before and After Coming to Tamassee." After a dance number by Theresa Brown, of Lydia Boggs Society, of Bluefield, W. Va., the annual election was held.

The nominating committee was headed by Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard. The same officers were re-elected, except one vice presidency, where there was a vacancy, to which Mrs. John Cable, wife of the Ohio representative, was chosen.

Officers are Mrs. Samuel S. Arentz, president; Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, vice president, presiding; Mrs. Frank Ray, recording secretary; Mrs. Theodore Clay Ihler, organizing secretary; Miss Aimee Powell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Thaddeus Jones, treasurer; Mrs. W. Gwynn Gardiner, registrar; Mrs. Charles S. Groves, librarian-curator; Mrs. Percy Bailey, national chaplain.

Vice presidents: Mrs. Violet Blaur Janin, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. Robinson Downey, Mrs. Lawrence Quirello, Miss Dorinda Rogers, Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Mrs. Frederick W. Memges, Mrs. Rose Mulcare, Mrs. John Maxwell and Mrs. John Cable.

The session this afternoon will be devoted principally to reports from the different societies, but will have two speakers. Representative Sol Bloom will present "Celebrating the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of Washington," and Mrs. H. L. Rust will speak on "Restoration of Wakefield."

Membership Given as 12,296.

In yesterday afternoon's reports the registrar gave 12,296 as the active members, with 389 transferred to the D. A. R. and the same number eligible for the Sons.

The librarian curator announced the gift of the history of Massachusetts societies and the addition of five State flags, bringing the total up to nineteen. She issued a call for Revolutionary relics which are liable to be found in the Middle West or even on the Pacific Coast.

In addition to her report, the historian urged every member to plant a tree next year in memory of Washington and told of the cooperation of the American Tree Planting Association with the Bicentennial Commission.

A cheerful report was given by the magazine editor, Mrs. Ray. The magazine, as the official bulletin, gives a message of the president which outlines the national policies and contains the activities and projects of the societies besides book reviews, stories and playlets of colonial times.

The organizing secretary declared that 41 new societies had been organized during the year, the majority being in the West.

Virginia Considers Salutes in School

Patriotic Bodies Ask Order Requiring All Children to Honor Flag.

Richmond, Va., April 22 (A.P.).—The State Board of Education, meeting here tomorrow, is expected to consider again the matter of compelling public school students to salute the flag of the United States.

A controversy over the matter has been before the board almost since the opening of school last fall, growing out of the refusal of a Mennonite boy in a Newport News school to salute the flag.

The issue came up when the boy refused to salute the flag on the ground that the ceremony was contrary to his religious faith. J. H. Saunders, division superintendent, held that the boy must comply with the custom, but he was overruled by the city school board. Patriotic orders are asking a resolution be passed compelling the salute from all school children.

Fete Aid Planned In Fredericksburg

Participation in Yorktown October Celebration Is Discussed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 22.—Plans by which Fredericksburg may have a share in staging the Yorktown Sesquicentennial in October were discussed here at a conference between eight local men and A. H. Lichty, representing the Virginia Commission, which with Federal aid is arranging the celebration commemorating the surrender of Cornwallis.

Prior to the meeting the conferees were entertained at dinner, at which the guests were City Manager L. J. Houston; jr.; W. S. Cheeley, president of the city council; Robert E. Clarke, president of the chamber of commerce; Capt. Gunyon M. Harrison, postmaster; Josiah P. Howe, jr., manager of the Free Lance-Star, and Warren Farmer, newspaper representative.

Stabbing of Youth Nets Fine and Jail

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 22.—Otis E. Caplinger, 24, of Northwest Rockingham, was sentenced to nine months in prison and fined $100 by a circuit court jury today on a charge of stabbing Ernest Yankey, a neighbor youth, three years ago. Caplinger was a fugitive since 1928 until he was taken to the Roekville (Md.) Hospital last February with a bullet wound in his lung.

After his recovery at Rockville, Caplinger was brought to jail here. He said he stabbed Yancey in self-defense after being struck over the head with a piece of wood.

Buracker's Dog Finds Slain Master's Hat Near Luray

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., April 22.—The instinct of Onyx, a shepherd dog belonging to William P. Buracker, of this county, has eclipsed the combined efforts of 500 men and women working at different times since March 5 to find the hat, watch, pocketknife and a letter known to have been on the person of Edward Buracker when he was murdered ten miles east of Luray.

Today the shepherd dog, accompanied by his owner and several friends, was making another search for the missing articles in the Blue Ridge. When the searching party was about ready to abandon their hunt as they had done perhaps a dozen times before, Onyx scented something under a log about 50 yards from where Buracker's body was found.

Pressing his way under the log, the dog soon emerged with the murdered man's hat in his mouth. The hat was found along a trail followed by bloodhounds from Buracker's body to the home of David Sours, who was acquitted of Buracker's murder a few days ago in the Page County Court at Luray. Buracker's watch, pocketknife and letter have never been found, though a daily search is being conducted. Buracker's father, James Buracker, took the hat to his home, carrying it between two sticks so that it might be examined by finger print experts.

WORKERS FOR BLIND VISIT AT ALEXANDRIA

Trip to Mt. Vernon Follows Luncheon at Chamber of Commerce.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

More than 100 delegates to the world conference on work for the blind, held in New York the last week, representing 37 nations, were guests of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce at luncheon at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the George Mason Hotel. Later the party was taken to Mount Vernon in special buses, and Gadsby's Tavern and other points of historic interest were visited.

Frank W. Noxon, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the luncheon. He called upon Mayor Edmund F. Ticer for a speech of welcome, and then introduced his excellency, Tytus Filipowicz, Ambassador from Poland, who gave a short talk. Mr. Noxon then introduced Alexander von Wuthenau, secretary of the German Embassy. The address of welcome was given by Dan S. Hollings, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Noxon called upon Robert B. Irwin, director of the tour, to designate one of the visitors to reply to the welcome, and Alrick Lundburg, of Sweden, dean of the conference, was chosen.

Members of the city council, directors of the Chamber of Commerce and heads of various civic organizations were present to greet the visitors.

Petitions which are being circulated asking for a change in city government from the present council-manager form to the old mayor-and-council form will be presented to Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the circuit court, when the court convenes in Alexandria May 4, according to announcement yesterday by proponents of the change. Work of checking names signed to petitions is nearing completion for the purpose of ascertaining whether all signers are qualified voters.

The movement to change back to the old form of government was launched several months ago, and it is understood there are more than 100 of the petitions. The statute requires that 20 per cent of the qualified voters shall sign a petition before it is presented to the judge of the circuit court, who shall, within 90 days, call a special election. It is understood that considerably more than the required number of voters has signed. Many signers affixed their names with the understanding that they are not bound in any way to support the movement, but are merely willing to have the question submitted to a vote, it is said.

Dissatisfaction with the present form of government has been expressed in certain quarters for a long time, and many people feel it would be wise to have the matter settled finally. The present form of government is now in its eighth year, having been inaugurated September 1, 1922.

Local troops of Boy Scouts will, at their meetings this week, elect three scouts each to represent the troops at a general election Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, when they will ballot for various officers of the city government. The "officials" thus elected will replace city officials for one day, to be designated at the convenience of the city, and will rule Alexandria, under the watchful eyes of officials they will replace. It is hoped to have this date set during National Boys Week, April 25-May 2.

A first-aid course will be set up for the scouts, beginning May 2 and running for eight weeks, so as to prepare a second group of twenty scouts as qualified in first aid. The first group finished its course last Saturday night, and the names of those who qualified are to be announced later.

The following schedule of events for local scouts has been announced:

Friday, May 22—Public court of honor.

Saturday, May 23—Overnight camp for all Alexandria scouts in connection with the annual competitive camping contest.

Saturday, June 6—Winning camping teams to compete with Maryland and District scouts to determine council winners.

Saturday, June 13—Scout rally and circus, to be held in the city to demonstrate the various phases of scouting to the general public.

June 19-21BRegional camping jamboree in Rock Creek Park. Scouts from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia, numbering 2,000, will participate.

Liquor Men Using Creolin Released

Dismissal in Lynchburg May Be Used as High Court Test Case.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 22.—Because courts here dismiss prohibition cases in which rumrunners use creolin to disguise the whisky, Commonwealth's Attorney W. T. Spencer, jr., threatens to appeal one of the cases to get a supreme court decision.

Mr. Spencer thinks local courts are being bamboozled by bootleggers using the chemical. Yesterday two men charged with rumrunning were freed in the municipal court and the Commonwealth's attorney has instituted proceedings in the corporation court looking to confiscation of their car. He said it might be possible to use this case as a test.

Logan Brent, Negro, 42 years old, has been lodged in the Alexandria City Jail by the Fairfax police and will be held here until his trial. Brent is charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old white girl. He was arrested Monday night, after a struggle with Fairfax officers, who claim that a half-gallon of alleged whisky was found at Brent's store, at Merrifield, Fairfax County.

Robert Hutchison, of Manassas, lieutenant governor of the Capital District, Kiwanis, will deliver an address at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the George Mason Hotel today. Capt. Thurlow White, of Fairfax County, will also address the club. The speakers will be introduced by Thomas Chauncey, former president of the club. Roger C. Sullivan, president, will occupy the head of the table.

A called meeting of Randolph Chapter, Rose Croix, Scottish Rite Masons, will be held at 7:30 o'clock Friday night in the Masonic Temple, when the fifteenth and sixteenth degrees will be conferred on a class of candidates. All Scottish Rite Masons have been invited to attend.

This affair marks the beginning of the spring work of the chapter.

Dr. W. Lewis Schaffer, city health officer, has announced that toxifi antitoxin treatment against diphtheria will be administered to children of preschool age at the city health office, beginning at 11 o'clock Friday.

A meeting of the citizens committee on schools will be held at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the George Mason Hotel to receive further committee reports and embody them in a composite survey.

Nine Students Are Hurt When Bus Hits Culvert

Greensburg, Pa., April 22 (A.P.).—Nine students of Southwestern College, of Winfield, Kans., were injured, one perhaps fatally, when a bus skidded and struck a culvert on the Lincoln Highway 2½ miles east of here today.

The injured were members of the Capella Choir and were on their way from New York to Columbus, Ohio.

GRAND JURY CLEARS COUNTY OF RACKETS

Prince Georges Court Told Evidence Is Insufficient for Indictments.

Stating that they had not uncovered sufficient evidence to warrant any indictments in the gambling and road house situation, in the bonding racket or in the towing racket, the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday made its report to the Circuit Court.

The most important suggestion made by the report is that the grand jury be convened more often, particularly after a crime of some magnitude has been committed. The length of time elapsing in some cases between the commission of a crime and the grand jury's investigation works against the interest of the State, the report says. The court has power to call together the jury at any time within its six months term of office.

While it failed to find any evidence of a bonding racket, the jury did find that there was no fixed price for bonds. They believe, according to the report, that stringent enforcement of the new laws regulating bondsmen will remove many of the alleged irregularities.

The report also commented on the fact that the jury understood that many bonds which had been forfeited had not yet been paid by the bondsmen. It is advised immediate action to secure payment and the disbarring of delinquent bondsmen until the sums have been paid.

While failing to uncover sufficient evidence to warrant indictments on the road and gambling house situation, the jury suggested that county policemen to be appointed be carefully selected and instructed to visit all suspected houses at least once a week. No support was found by the jury for allegations that favored garages were given jobs of towing in and storing cars belonging to prisoners.

Calling attention to the long list of delinquent dog taxes, the report also favored stringent enforcement of this law. The practice said to be indulged in the upper end of the county, of destroying surveyors' marks, was also rapped.

The report pointed out that in several places buildings were erected so close to roads that views of traffic is obstructed, and advised that these be removed. It also advised raising the pay of both grand and petit jurors from $3 to $5 per day, and thanked District police for help given in the prosecution of cases.

The jury expressed its support of a county building containing a temporary lock-up to be established in Hyattsville. The report stated that 83 cases were presented to the jury and 61 indictments were returned. Nine cases were ignored and others were dismissed for various causes.

Three youths who were captured in the Sanitary Grocery Store in Hyattsville several months ago were yesterday sentenced in circuit court to serve five years each on a charge of housebreaking. They were the first criminals to be sentenced at this term of court, having pleaded guilty several days ago.

The three men are Lewis Gorme, Albert Oriente and Joseph Rose, all of Baltimore. They were captured by Albert Anderson, chief of police of Hyattsville.

Eugene Castle, colored janitor of the Laurel Drug Co., in Laurel, was sentenced to serve two years for the larceny of goods valued at about $65 from the store. He is alleged to have taken home toilet articles over a period of time. Castle also pleaded guilty.

Alice Chase, colored, who received a suspended sentence at the last term of court on a larceny charge, was yesterday sentenced to serve two years on charges of housebreaking, larceny and receiving stolen goods. She will also have to serve the two-year sentence which was suspended last fall.

William Butler, whose case went to the circuit court on an appeal from the police court, was fined $200 on a charge of driving while drunk.

A number of other persons arrested on grand jury indictments were arraigned yesterday. They include Thomas A. Phillips, charged with hold-up of a jewelry store in Laurel, who pleaded guilty. It is understood that this plea was entered after he was assured that Paul M. Taylor, indicted with him, would also plead guilty.

Phillips is said to be the last surviving member of the Whittemore gang, of Baltimore. He was arrested several hours after the hold-up several months ago. Eldridge Taylor, who was involved in the hold-up with Phillips and Paul Taylor, to whom he is not related, shot himself when cornered by policemen.

Clarence Diggs pleaded guilty to assault and battery and assault with intent to kill on Lee Diggs, although Harold McKey pleaded not guilty to similar assaults on Harry Melton. Bernice Besley and Emma O'Neil pleaded not guilty on charges that they murdered Morris Moore, colored.

Frederick Ohm and Robert Withers pleaded not guilty to stealing tobacco from Raymond Chaney, while Russell Chaney, who was named with them in the indictment, pleaded guilty. Andrew Young, Robert Young and Elwood Young pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing lumber.

George Johnson, Grenville Haskill, Thomas Deshields and William Floyd Pinkney pleaded guilty to a charge of arson in connection with the broom factory fire at the house of correction, where they are confined, although Harold Beale pleaded not guilty to a charge of starting a similar fire last June. Arthur White pleaded not guilty to charges of the larceny of several chickens and receiving stolen goods. A similar plea was made by James McKenney, of Greater Capitol Heights, on a similar charge. McKenney is accused of the theft of four chickens, worth $5, from Anne Hudson.

Indictments were returned yesterday against Donald Pinkney for manslaughter; Charles Davis, housebreaking; Bernard Coine, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Donald Moore, desertion; Donnie McLaurin, statutory offense, and John Thomas Adams, statutory offense. Davis is an inmate of the house of correction who was shot in the leg last winter while allegedly breaking into a food storeroom.

James Rudolph West, of Fifth street northwest near F street, was yesterday fined $200 in Hyattsville Police Court for possession and transportation of liquor. He was arrested near Laurel by Constable Ralph Brown. Harold Coleman, of S street northwest near Fourteenth street, was fined $100 on similar charges.

Thomas Higgins, who was arrested after a raid on his home near Muirkirk, Md., was fined $50 for possession of liquor. Lucille Thomas was fined $2 for assault and battery on Joseph Johnson, and the same amount for the same thing on Samuel Thomas. She was also fined $1 for throwing stones at an auto.

Judge J. Chew Sheriff scored drivers who make left turns without being sure the road is entirely clear of approaching traffic and dismissed charges of reckless driving against John M. Spadola, an employe of the agricultural farm at Beltsville. Spadola was alleged to have struck a truck which made a left turn. Judge Sheriff said that in all the cases he had heard in the last two years the driver making the left turn was at fault.

Robbery of J. B. Baden's store at Baden, Md., of merchandise valued at about $200 was discovered early yesterday morning when the store was opened. Entrance was gained through a rear window. No money was taken, the loot being all in foodstuffs and household goods.

Two men, who gave Washington addresses, were arrested when Hyattsville police seized one of the largest liquor caches ever located in the north end of the county. About 500 gallons of alleged contraband were seized when Albert Anderson, chief of police of Hyattsville, raided a house on Columbia avenue.

The men arrested were Leroy Phillips, of M street northwest, near Thirteenth street, and William Jacobs, who said he lives at the Atlas Hotel. They weer charged with possession and manufacturing and held for bonds of $1,000 each. In addition to the liquor, a still and 38 barrels of mash were destroyed.

R. E. Lauer and H. P. BBeeson have been fined $1 each in the drive to make residents of Riverdale comply with the building regulations. Lauer was charged with building a garage without a permit from the town, while Beeson was accused of building a chicken house, also without a permit.

Both men, according to Town Clerk R. P. Caruthers, had requested permits, which weer refused, on the basis of objections of neighbors. They went ahead with the construction, however.

73 HOURS Continuous flight, WITHOUT REFUELING

Exceeding the American Record in
THE PACKARD-DIESEL BELLANCA

When the 225 h. p. Packard-Diesel powered Bellanca, piloted by Walter Lees and Frederic A. Brossy, descended to earth at Jacksonville, Fla., at 10:40 a. m. Wednesday morning, April 15th, it had exceeded by 14 hours and 29 minutes the American non-refueling endurance record of 59 hours and 19 minutes, made in 1928 by Schlee and Brock with a 225 h. p. gasoline engine.

Aloft from 8:52 a. m. Sunday, April 12, the Packard-Diesel Bellanca remained in continuous flight for 73 hours, 48 minutes. It came within one hour and 35 minutes of equalling the world's record of 75 hours and 23 minutes set last month by the Frenchmen Bossoutrot and Rossi with a 600 h. p. gasoline engine.

Only a violent storm accompanied by a total loss of visibility which forced the Bellanca down with engine functioning perfectly and with enough reserve fuel for several hours of additional flight, prevented the almost certain capture of the world's non-refueling endurance record.

The Packard-Diesel Bellanca took off with a gross load of 6,666 pounds, including 458 gallons of fuel oil weighing 7 pounds per gallon. Notwithstanding this unusual weight, the plane took the air in 31 seconds. And the total cost of the fuel supply for more than three days and nights of continuous flight was but $45.80.

Thus has the supremacy of the Packard-Diesel—both in reliability and economy—been proved again. Thus has another tribute been paid to Packard power—outstanding in the air, on water and on land.

FORMAL RECOGNITION GIVEN TO NEW SPAIN

he was king and the other a head waiter.

Unattended, the exiled king stopped his car before reaching the hotel to avoid the attention of crowds, which had cheered for him several times during the day. He walked into the building unannounced and asked to see the Marchioness of Portago. While waiting for her he had a chat with Juan Fernandez, the maitre d'hotel, upon whom the king always called during previous visits to London.

After spending some time with the marchioness the king was offered a posy by a little girl who was staying at the hotel. Alfonso accepted it and, bowing low, kissed the child's hand.

Fernandez later said he had expressed regret to Alfonso over the change of regime in Spain and the king replied: "I suppose I must give them an opportunity." When Fernandez said he hoped the monarch would soon return to Spain, he answered: "We will have to see about that."

Alfonso's entrance and departure from the hotel was not noticed by the residents.

The royal visitor, however, continued to attract much attention on the streets. He was recognized frequently and cheered.

Houses Are Unroofed By Storm in Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., April 22 (A.P.).—A violent windstorm swept over this city this afternoon, badly damaging residences, breaking down trees and spreading debris in the streets. No one was injured. The roof of the House of C. L. Burks was lifted and raised high in the air.

Three adjacent residences were partially unroofed.

RENO SEEKS MORE DIVORCES

than some 5,000 population—has a vast stake in the divorce trade, a stake it would be ruinous to lose.

To understand this fully, you must go some way back. In the first article of this series The Washington Post contrasted gambling in the old days with the revival of today.

Now, for a moment, contrast the city of Reno in 1931 with the mining center (Reno) of the boom days. You will find some cogent reasons why this colony will fight to hold its own against the interlopers in the racket of divorce.

It was 1864 when Nevada wrote its first divorce law, with a six months' residence requirement, at the first session of the new State's Legislature. But, until 1910, Reno cared little, if at all, about the divorce industry.

In 1875, only nine years after Nevada became a State, there came the "big bonanza" that made Fair and Mackay, Flood and O'Brien the "bonanza kings."

Millionaires Sprouted.

The great Comstock lode yielded $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually, and when the Comstock petered out, Tonpah, Goldfield, Manhattan, Fairview and Rhyolite succeeded it. In the decade 1900-1910 millionaires sprouted overnight out of the desert. Mining stock went rocketing. The colored chips went spinning over the green-covered gambling tables. Every prospector had his grubstake—and whisky with it, if he wanted. Reno furnished it—and flourished.

Stock farming boomed. Sheep and cattle fattened by the millions on the open range. If the Nevada Legislature the members day by day discussed the pleasant question if mining were the State's chief industry—or was it agriculture?

Reno danced to golden music—until hard times came.

Hit by Depression.

The 1907-1908 depression did the trick. It hit the State's two big producers a terrific wallop. By 1910 Goldfield, Manhattan, Seven Troughs and all the rest were gone or going with the old high-graders. The golden stream that had flowed into Reno was cut short.

Attorneys, who some years before had scorned to meddle with domestic difficulties for a $500 fee, lost their fat mining company retainers.

Out of their troubles Reno's new industry was born. The name of the forgotten genius who resurrected, publicized and put to work the liberal divorce laws of the State is lost, but by 1910, when the bottom dropped out of mining stocks, the divorce "mill" was well established to replace the milling of the ores.

Shortsighted Citizens.

To the discredit of the town, let it be said said that Reno did not, at first, appreciate its fortune. Agitation against the divorce laws began no sooner than the town was well intrenched as a Mecca for the matrimonially unfortunate.

Reformers painted a picture of Nevada scorned throughout the Nation as a sink of immorality. The headlines that blazoned well-known names as Reno customers played their part. In 1913 the legislature yielded; changed the law of 1864 and required the seekers for divorce to stay a year inside the State before their suits were filed.

It didn't work. Within the year merchants, keepers of hotels, servants, waxing rich on Eastern wage scales; landlords, nourished by the stream of visitors cut off by the amendment of law, were up in arms.

Again Royal Divorce.

The Reno delegation went to the 1915 session of the legislature with orders to restore divorce to its old royal state or not come home. It testified to the importance they attached to the command that, before they had the old six months' term restored, they traded off every bit of patronage they had controlled before.

Since then there has been no trouble. In 1910 it was estimated the divorce trade brought $145,000 to Reno in twelve months.

The present estimate is some $3,000,000 annually spent by petitioners and plaintiffs in this town of 18,000 population.

The Town Grows.

Elaborate apartment houses have sprung up. There are three fine hotels, built within the past ten years. There are beauty shops. Department stores are stocked with New York goods. Five of the country's largest chain stores have Reno branches. There is a golf club. Five dude ranches, all within a few hours' ride of Reno, are supported by the seekers of decrees.

There are three night clubs, hosts to Eastern money. The "industry" supports them. The "industry" has turned back into Reno the golden stream that trickled elsewhere when stock and mining slumped.

With quick divorce Reno is prosperous and cosmopolitan. Without it—what?

Two Rivals Appear.

That was the question that the Washoe County Bar Association asked itself a month or two ago when from Hot Springs and from Boise there came the news that Reno's profitable business in divorces was to have its rivals. There were hurried meetings. One Reno advocate, who has accumulated $500,000 cash and half a dozen business blocks in town by presenting clients to the kindly courts, summed up the situation for The Washington Post.

"Nevada's live-stock industry went to pot after the war," he said. "The silver mines have filled with water since the silver market started on a never-ending nose dive. Dry years since 1924 have almost ruined many of the State's farms, and we never had any big manufacturing concerns.

Fine Scenery and Laws.

"What is the answer? Well, the answer is that we have fine climate, lots of scenery and we can—and do—pass liberal laws.

And out of the threat to the divorce monopoly came the six-week divorce law—and the gambling act. Threatened with liberal competition, Nevada has become even more liberal.

It may work out. From the yearly average of 800 divorce cases filed in Reno between 1922 and 1926, the total jumped to 1,603 in 1927 and 2,103 in 1928—the result of the three months' divorce law carried in 1927.

New Mark to Shoot At.

In 1929 and 1930 the total passed 2,000, and every one was satisfied until Arkansas and Idaho entered the field. Now, with open gambling, Reno has added to the list of its attractions. Three thousand divorces for 1931 is the new goal that Reno shoots at. And for 1932 they're talking of 4,000—and a lovely, swelling golden stream fattening Reno's coffers.

And then, again, it may not work. Almost certainly in 1932 there will be a Statewide referendum on the gambling law. And if they can't gamble will they come to Reno for decrees?

The third article of this series will deal with prohibition and the "bootleg" gambling which Mayor Roberts said "Nevada always did" under the surface.

Row About Roses Results in Death

Baby Crawls Into Flowers; Owner Is Charged With Father's Murder.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 22.—A formal charge of murder was filed against John H. Rowland, 74, retired railroad worker, this afternoon. Rowland's victim was Robert G. Irving, 23 whose 17-month-old son, Robert, jr., strayed upon Rowland's rose bed and so angered the aged man that he shot the father during an altercation last night. Irving died today.

From information secured by authorities from neighbors and Rowland himself, the two resided in a double house owned by Rowland. Mrs. Irving permitted her son to play on the lawn. There was no fence between the two yards and the baby crawled into the Rowland yard and was said to have damaged some of Rowland's prize roses.

Rowland was preparing to set some posts when Irving returned from work in this city last night. An argument followed and Rowland procured a gun and bought some shells. He returned home and shot Irving as the latter stood upon his back porch, both charges of the shotgun entering Irving's body. Blood transfusions during the night failed and Irving died early today. Rowland admitted the shooting and said that Irving had threatened him.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE ROCK GARDEN MANIA.

AMERICA is being swept by an epidemic of Rock Gardenitis.

Wherever you see the man of the house wearily lugging huge stones across the yard and tenderly depositing them at his wife's instructions; wherever you see curious operations with a shovel and a garden hose; wherever you see two or more persons in a huddle over an irregular mound, you know the answer: Another rock garden!

• • • •

Everybody's doing it. The demand for rocks is exceeding the immediate supply. Nobody's stone wall is safe.

• • • •

Nobody who amounts to anything wants to be caught without at least one rock garden on the premises. To have a yard without a rock garden is like having a house in the country without four baths. It's just unthinkable.

• • • •

Books on "How to Build a Rock Garden" are among the season's best sellers, and when Henry X. Commuter gets home from the city these spring evenings the first question the wife fires at him is "Did you remember to stop and get those mosses and the anemones?"

• • • •

As soon as Henry has answered that one he gets the command "Change into your old clothes and get me about a dozen more rocks!"

• • • •

LIFE with Henry these days is just one rock after another. He might as well be working on a stone pile.

• • • •

In addition to rocks and vegetation you also have to have a pool and a couple of rivulets. You feed the rivulets with a garden hose and get your reaction by reading the water meter.

• • • •

One advantage the rock garden has over the ordinary flower bed is that some of its defects may be screened. The rocks hide some of the flowers and the flowers hide some of the rocks, so that neither half ever looks too conspicuously sour.

• • • •

Then, too, when a flower bed goes wrong it is a total loss, whereas a rock garden can go bad and still look fairly ornamental.

• • • •

And even if the worst comes to the worst, a rock gardener still has something to show for his labors. He has the rocks.

• • • •

And if anybody asks, "What's that thing?" you can always insist that it is something Little Junior built with the boy next door at the instructions of the scoutmaster.

SPEAKING OF TITLES.

KING PRAJADHIPOK OF SIAM also holds the titles Supreme Arbiter of the Tides, Brother of the Moon, Half Brother of the Sun and Possessor of the Four and Twenty Golden Umbrellas. We hereby confer on him the additional titles of Half Uncle of the Little Dipper, Nephew of the Winds and Custodian of the Eleven Odd Sized Rubbers, All for the Left Foot.

Add similies: As unfortunate as an investor who is holding the blue chip stocks.

It is announced that there were 7,508,733 passengers on New York subway trains during the last eight months. It's probably a mistake. Look around again and see if they're not still there, but with somebody standing on them.

THE James Clark Ross, most modern of whalers, is back from the Antarctic. She looks like a modern passenger liner, has up-to-date motors, hoists the whales into the hold by a sort of escalator and pays members of the crew as high as $15,000 for a trip. Moby Dick in a silk hat, figuring out his bank balance and complaining of the elevator service, isn't difficult to imagine any more.

Plans are in the works for a "dry" newspaper. One of the first things barred, obviously, would be a "Five Star" Edition.

SHARE OF GAS LEVY IS URGED FOR CITIES

Candidates for Reelection to Virginia's Assembly Seek Division.

Richmond, Va., April 22 (A.P.).—A strong fight in the 1932 General Assembly for allocation of a portion of the gasoline tax for use on city streets traversed by highways is indicated in pronouncements of urban members of the last assembly who are seeking reelection.

Counties now receive one-third the gasoline tax on a scale worked out in the last session, but the cities do not participate in the distribution, although residents of urban districts benefit by the increased building of highways in counties adjacent to cities under the distribution plan. Urban representatives point out, however, that this does not benefit the city government financially and that since a large proportion of the gasoline tax is paid in cities, some portion should go to street improvement.

In opposition to this urban view there is a tendency to leave the gasoline tax distribution as it is among the majority of rural representatives. Some, however, asserting that counties are using their gasoline tax allotment for purposes other than roads, want the administration of the county fund changed from local authorities to the State highway commission.

State Auditor Coleman Andrews in a recent report to the governor said many counties were violating the law relative to use of the gasoline tax fund paid them. Commenting on this, many candidates for the Legislature have indicated that the administration of the fund as well as the distribution will come before the 1932 assembly.

Appomattox Postmaster Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., April 22 (Special).—Robert S. Irby, 68, postmaster at Appomattox for fifteen years, died at his home there Monday. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

It's quite smart to turn inside out

. . . A Jacket Frock that will lead a clever double life . . .

Impeccably chic just as a jacket frock . . . but it can change its colors, too, simply by turning its fetching little jacket inside out.

We picture one of a variety of models.

The frock has cap sleeves, and the gored skirt of navy crepe, is contrasted with a white top, while the jacket is lined with "sky-blue" crepe, presenting a two-tone combination when reversed. The tie back sash makes this frock particularly alluring.

Available in Black with Watermelon, Black with Aquamarine. Brown with Chartreuse, and Brown with White.

SOCIALISM AMONG NATIONS.

Gen. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has made a list of "certain fundamentals" which, he says, must be corrected before business will return to a sound and substantial basis. Four of those fundamentals pertain to international commerce and a fifth is closely allied to it. Apparently Mr. Atterbury has joined the ranks of international economists who see no hope for the United States unless this country shoulders the burdens of Europe as well as its own.

The fundamentals to which he refers are maldistribution of gold, war debts, tariffs, installment buying, reduction of the national debt, high taxation and the antitrust laws. Considered all together, these so-called maladjustments and the corrective measures suggested are quite confusing. "Impediments to international trade," says Gen. Atterbury, "are one of the greatest obstacles in the way of commercial recovery." The United States is producing more than it can sell either to the home market or abroad. The desirability of a greater outlet for goods can not be disputed. But it happens that the domestic market absorbs about 90 per cent of America's output and foreign nations the remainder. Would Gen. Atterbury remove tariff barriers and expose the 90 per cent market to foreign competition in the hope of building up the 10 per cent market?

His argument on war debts is equally confusing. Gen. Atterbury thinks the Government should not reduce its war debt so rapidly. At the same time he argues for an adjustment of war debts owed by other countries to the United States, and for lower taxation. Should the war debts of Europe be assumed by this Government it would ultimately increase taxes to the extent of more than $11,000,000,000. How does Gen. Atterbury reconcile his position on war debts with his plea for lower taxes?

In reality there is no such thing as cancellation of war debts. If Europe doesn't pay them American taxpayers must. In effect Mr. Atterbury suggests that Americans assume part of Europe's indebtedness so that those countries will have more to spend on international commerce. On that basis, why should not this country undertake to pay the domestic debts of Britain, France and Italy and Germany's reparations? The percentage of Europe's debt payments which comes to this country is very small. If the United States really wanted to do a magnanimous service, it might assume all the debts of the world so that Europe would be free to grow prosperous.

Of course, the American people are anxious for the economic recovery of Europe. They realize all too well that economic conditions in one great nation are reflected throughout the world. But why should the United States promote the prosperity of Europe at the sacrifice of its own? The theory that one country ought to reduce itself to the general level by assuming debts and opening its domestic market amounts to nothing more than socialism among nations.

A FOOLISH VENTURE.

Miss Ruth Nichols' proposed flight across the Atlantic can not be discussed without a deep feeling of regret. She is one of the most distinguished feminine pilots in the country. Having taken up aviation as a profession only three years ago, she holds the world's speed and altitude records for women. It is difficult to understand why Miss Nichols should choose to risk her life in a foolish venture when the future holds for her such rich promise of a brilliant career.

What lures this young woman to such a rash undertaking? The Atlantic has been crossed many times before. If fortune should favor her with a safe flight to Europe, she would not be the first woman to fly the Atlantic. Amelia Earhart has already claimed that honor. Should chance tip the scales of fate against her, she would be only one of several women who have been swallowed up by the Atlantic because their desire for fame outbalanced their good judgment.

With the exception of Miss Earhart, every woman who has tried to span the Atlantic by air has failed. At least four have disappeared never to be heard of again. Even when they have been accompanied by expert male aviators, the odds have turned heavily against them. In spite of this record of useless sacrifice, Miss Nichols apparently intends to face the Atlantic storms alone. Friends who have watched her develop into a first-class aviatrix thought she had better judgment.

Transoceanic flying has progressed far enough to prove that the airplane is not at present a suitable medium of transportation across great open spaces of water. Nothing that Miss Nichols might accomplish on her proposed flight can change that fact, and the hazards involved in transatlantic flying do not need further illustration. If Miss Nichols carriers out her intention to flirt with death in this manner, she will run the risk of discrediting aviation in the public mind as well as needlessly sacrificing her own life.

SPANISH REPUBLIC RECOGNIZED.

The United States Government has notified Ambassador Laughlin at Madrid of its decision to recognize the new Spanish republic, and diplomatic relations between the two countries will be reestablished at once. Inasmuch as the United States Ambassador remained at Madrid it was simply necessary for him, following instructions from Secretary of State Stimson, to report Washington's recognition to the Spanish foreign office.

Anticipating American recognition, Foreign Minister Lerroux had already announced the appointment of Senor Don Salvador Madariaga as the Ambassador of Spain in Washington to succeed Senor Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, who resigned following the overthrow of King Alfonso.

The Spanish republic undoubtedly will make a favorable impression in the United States by its selection of Senor Madariaga. He enjoys an international reputation as an author, while his work in higher education and in connection with the League of Nations has elicited high praise.

For several years Senor Madariaga has held the chair of Spanish studies at Oxford University and in connection with this professorship he is now in Mexico City delivering a series of lectures at the university. It is as an author of books largely relating to Spain and as a writer on social and international questions that the new ambassador is best known in this country. His contributions to American magazines have in recent months attracted wide attention for their scholarly character and insight into racial questions and their relation to international affairs.

As director of the disarmament division of the secretariat of the League of Nations Senor Madariaga became known in political circles throughout the world. When Spain withdrew from active participation in the league he resigned his official position and has since resumed educational and literary labors that have brought him wide renown. Dr. Madariaga will bring to Washington a command of many languages, including fluent use of English.

THE AUTOGIRO.

An airplane dropped down among the trees to the White House lawn yesterday. President Hoover and a distinguished assemblage waited to see the feat accomplished for the first time. It was, of course, a plane of the autogiro type, making the test landing. The plane rolled but ten feet after touching the ground. Later Pilot Jim Ray started the windmill atop his machine and lifted it gracefully out of the President's back yard.

The occasion for this demonstration of the safety in making difficult landings was the presentation by President Hoover of the Collier Trophy for the greatest American aeronautical achievement of the past year. In the presence of Orville Wright and many notables, including members of the Cabinet, the trophy was delivered by the Chief Executive to Harold F. Pitcairn, who is chiefly responsible for development of the windmill plane.

With commendable generosity Mr. Pitcairn insisted upon sharing the trophy with the Spanish inventor of the autogiro, Juan de la Cierva. For six years Mr. Pitcairn and his associates have been making improvements upon the principle developed by Senor Cierva through a series of 75 models. They have made a distinct contribution to the art of flying.

NORMAN'S WORLD BANK.

A new interpretation is placed upon the visit to the United States of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, by the London Daily Mail. If that journal has been correctly informed, Mr. Norman came to America to discuss a new scheme of dispensing credit to the whole world with the aid of American capital. Banking interests of the United States are reported to have already agreed to the general outlines of a plan to finance trade with new and undeveloped markets through a world trade credit bank.

Not the least of the new markets to which credit would be extended by this method is Russia. According to the Mail, the proposed bank would grant direct trade credits and extend a guarantee status of borrower to each government concerned. In this manner Russia would be eligible to participate in the facilities of the bank, as all purchases for Russia are guaranteed by and made through the Soviet government.

The Daily Mail asserts without reservation that the recent visit of Mr. Norman to the United States was chiefly concerned with the establishment of this new bank. But reports that American capital is taking an active interest in the project are no doubt fanciful.

AMERICANS ABROAD.

Uncle Sam keeps tab on his nieces and nephews who go away from home to live. He has recently checked up and finds that there are no less than 386,372 American citizens living in foreign lands. This number does not include tourists and the temporary sojourners. As might be expected, more than one-half this number are to be found in Canada, 218,502 of them, living across the northern border where they can raise more wheat and unrestrained cups that cheer.

By general geographical divisions the next largest number of citizens of the United States is to be found in Europe. They are 88,309 strong. Asia claims 20,286; South America, 13,724; Africa, 3,470, and Australia and New Zealand, 1,956. Next to Canada there are more Americans in France than in any other country. Some 25,900 live in Paris or get to the city for week-ends. Many Americans migrated from Mexico during the years of revolutionary activity there, but today there are still nearly 12,000 south of the border. Cuba's varied attractions lure more than 7,000 as more or less permanent residents. In South America the United States is represented as follows: In Argentina, 3,718; Brazil, 2,959; Venezuela, 1,974; Chile, 1,856, and Peru, 1,813.

China, with all its trouble, is the home of about 9,000 Americans, Japan ranking second in Asia with 3,756. India is third, with 2,625, and Palestine has about 1,800. There are no American consular agents in Russia to give accurate figures, but it is estimated that there are still 1,800 citizens of the United States there. Other countries show American residents as follows: Great Britain, 8,000; Czechoslovakia, 7,680; Italy, 5,452; Jugoslavia, 5,436; Germany, 4,302, and Poland, 3,000.

Many of these residents abroad are representatives of American manufacturing and exporting interests, but whether actively engaged in trade or not they are pioneers who expand American business in foreign lands. By example in the use of household goods and the larger branches of machinery they demonstrate the practical values of American products in ways that are often much more effective than the interested solicitations of direct agents. Comparatively few Americans abroad are expatriates, except for legitimate reasons of business, health or pleasure, and most of them come home again when their temporary missions have been completed.

FIRE WALKERS OF MALAY

By G. BILAINKIN, in the Spectator.

Within half an hour of leaving Penang in the ferry I was on the mainland of the peninsula, driving through rubber plantations, rice fields, coconut groves, to Kepala Batas. Hundreds of Indians were on the roads leading to the temple, and thousands, including Chinese and Malays, had met in an adjoining field, wearing their best clothes.

The arena was 12 yards by 3, and covered with red cinders about 15 inches deep. Near the pit was an inclosure with raised platforms for European guests, and on the opposite side for Indians of high caste and Chinese dignitaries.

To the accompaniment of much beating of tom-toms a pumpkin was cut in two and placed on the ground at the far side of the inclosure. A noisy crowd came down the road, followed by a cart drawn by white bullocks, carrying the god of the day. Dozens of men danced wildly. Some had pins through their flesh and hooks in their backs. Some had bells hanging from their chests. One man had his tongue pierced with a metal ornament and pins through his cheeks. Nearing the pumpkin, the procession stopped and the music became more deafening. Enthusiasm among Tamil onlookers was now high and many pressed against the platforms. Babies were flung into the air by fathers who feared that the little ones might be suffocated if they were unnoticed in the crush. Chinese clerks from the estate office and shy little Malay policemen in khaki suddenly appeared and restored order.

A consultation was held, and leaders and priests walked down to the opposite end of the pit, ready to receive the men after they had walked over the cinders. The priests stood near a small space filled with muddy water, which was to give relief to the feet after they had undergone trial. The heat was almost unbearable, and the principal man with the rake was continually washed down, like an elephant, with buckets of water. The Europeans pushed themselves as far back as possible on the platform. The man with the rake walked past the pit for the last time, moving a piece here and there.

Tom-toms were now silent and the general roar died down. A man approached the pit. Nobody, however, seemed ready for the ordeal.

We were all struck by the suddenness of the first fire walker. He was a bareheaded priest, wearing a yellow cloth around the body. He looked back at the carriage containing the god, then at the pumpkin. He stepped on the cinders, and placed his feet unsteadily, for he kept his eyes level and looked toward the temple. The only sound to be heard in the arena was that of the coke as it was dislodged. The priest balanced a large ornament, about 2 feet high, on his head. He was walking slowly, as though on a well-metaled part of the estate roads. He faltered a little near the end—his foot may have gone into a hole, but he was not hurrying or changing his pace. He was in the muddy portion at last, beyond the cinders. Head erect, arms by side, he stepped out and walked unaided to the temple. From his face there was little to tell that he had undergone an ordeal from which only a few in a million whites would not shrink.

Interest now changed to the lay penitents crowded near the pumpkin. Nobody had yet followed the priest. There was a distinct interval. Now a man with unusually thin legs was inside the arena, head well up, hands joined close to the chin, in an attitude of prayer or thanksgiving. He hurried when halfway over. As he was nearing the end his face suggested that he might collapse. Perhaps he was under a narcotic. His expression of terror did not disappear, even thought he was now in the muddy patch, safe from the horror. As he collapsed into the arms of men waiting to receive him his features were distorted, perhaps in agony.

Nobody was surprised when two girls, age about 10, passed over the pit; but not in the hottest part. They walked at the side, over red cinders. They, too, I was told, had fasted since 5 o'clock in the morning—thirteen hours.

Of the ten white women who had come to be spectators, only one was watching—the others had turned to look the other way.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE SENTIMENTALIST.

His life was gentle—on a summer's day
We walked together, each with stick in hand
When slithering and squirming o'er the land
A snake appeared. I raised my club to slay;
Struck at the reptile; missed; kept up the fray
And started in pursuit! He followed, and
Pounded at times the brown grass and the sand
As if he shared my terror and dismay.

The serpent crossed his path. His hand was high
To strike the blow, and then he stepped aside,
Let fall the club and said: "If I had tried
I could have killed it, as perhaps I ought,
But I was interrupted by a thought.
"I'll swear that as I stood there set to kill
There flashed a curious notion through my mind
Perhaps this snake has friends who think it kind;
An old and helpless parent who is ill,
Or several small and hungry mouths to fill.
Perhaps if but the truth we two could find,
Dead snakes leave endless misery behind
Which humans never sense and never will.

"Stayed by such thoughts, I let the reptile flee,
Although I could have stopped it with a blow;
"Kill it!" I heard you plainly call to me.
I spared it! Think me foolish? Maybe so.
Tonight that snake can tell his friends at tea
How cleverly he dodged a brutal foe!"

It Is Wasteful to Shoot the Fiddlers to Discover Which One Is Out of Tune.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICANS are extremists and faddists. Whatever they find to do they do with all their might. Whatever the neighbors do, they will follow suit.

Thus life becomes a series of epidemics—mah jong, appendix operations, bobbed hair, bridge, ship models, backgammon.

The fad of the moment consists of blaming it on the teeth. All human ills obscure in origin lead to the dentist's office, and countless victims are gumming their rations while waiting for plates because somebody else got rid of his teeth and troubles at the same time.

There are two sides to the story, however, and the trick is to find the side that fits.

Here are two authentic and typical cases.

A certain man of middle age was afflicted with some disorder that his physician called rheumatism. He was told to see a dentist.

The dentist he selected was one of the old school and slow to believe in things unseen.

"Your teeth are worn," said he, "but they are sound and your gums are healthy. If they were my teeth, I would keep them."

The physician held fast to his diagnosis, however, and the poor victim took counsel of desperation and returned to the dentist.

Now he sleeps with his teeth in a glass of water. But he doesn't sleep much, for the pains of rheumatism torment him still and the doctors are blaming his gall bladder.

He sacrificed a set of innocent teeth to prove another man's bad guess wrong.

The other case is different.

This man's malady was even more mysterious than rheumatism. His heart ached. His kidneys were diseased. His joints and muscles were sore. And he lay on his back, expecting to die.

His teeth didn't ache. There wasn't an abscessed root in the lot. But all of them were decayed more or less down to the gum, and his gums were diseased.

The same old-school dentist pulled his teeth while he lay in bed, and two months later he had gained 28 pounds and lost all of his ailments.

The moral is that bad teeth can wreck the strongest of men, but no sacrifice of sound teeth will cure a disorder caused by something else.

If there's an unknown thief in camp, will you hang twenty honest men in an effort to stop the pilfering?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Mud Slinging.
New York Times.

Rude challenges of public men in this city to compare their private lives with each other have been thought highly irregular. Various influential men in the organization of either party are left aghast at the proceeding, and are urging that it be hushed up before going any further. Their stand recalls the attitude of Lord Melbourne, Queen Victoria's first prime minister. Dutifully and officially attending a church service, he was disgusted by hearing an evangelical clergyman preach plainly about sin and its punishment, and went away indignantly asking what they were coming to if the church was actually going to meddle with private life.

Against politics doing so there is a strong tradition. A common defense of a public official accused of improprieties verging on corruption has been that, whatever lapses he may have been guilty of under strong temptation, his domestic life was admirable in its purity. Have we not all heard of even Tammany leaders under charges whose friends tearfully pointed out how very kind they were to their old mothers? Of many a politician temporarily under a cloud it has been said by faithful eulogists that if they were only able to draw the veil from over his private life the public would see that it was really one grand, sweet song.

A New Bureau.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

The United States has many bureaus—too many, perhaps; but the urgency of Senator Hiram Bingham, that there shall be established a Federal Bureau for Colonial Affairs is worth more than a passing thought. Indeed, its consideration would appear to have justice, expedience and economic features strongly affecting its support.

This view seems to have been strengthened by the President's recent visit to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, though the President himself has said that he sees no present need of such a step.

Senator Bingham, however, insists that efficient administration of the United States possessions could best be had through a centralized bureau, probably established under the Department of the Interior. He believes in the development of a class of career men who would be led to devote themselves exclusively to colonial administration were they given opportunity to rise in the service. Such a system, for example, would permit of an official in Guam to be promoted to the larger field of Porto Rico. Porto Rico is now under the control of the War Department while the Navy controls Guam.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Lumber Manufacturer Lauds Nature for Her Recuperative Powers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial in The Post of April 20, under soil erosion, falls into the common error of confusing complete denudation of forest land with the removal of the original timber crop. Except where successive destructive fires follow the cutting of the original trees the forest industries contribute practically nothing to soil erosion. That is because the undergrowth and new growth come up so rapidly that within a few years the new cover holds moisture and retards erosion better than the original cover of large trees. You will find, if you will consult experts in the Forest Service, that the soil erosion problem so far as it has been promoted by the activities of men, results mostly from the conversion of forest land into tilled and pasture land.

As it is obviously impossible to regrow trees coincidentally with the crops from which we derive our food and the raw materials of industry, some other method than reforestation must be found to prevent erosion.

Very rarely do the idealistic but often uninformed writers on forest matters mention or make clear the fact that virtually the whole of the permanent denudation of original forest land in this country is due to the demands of agriculture and other requirements of civilization that are not compatible with a permanent forest cover. For this reason alone our original forest area of 822,000,000 acres would ultimately have to be reduced by three or four hundred million acres.

Another common error in discussion of forest problems is the naive faith in statistics regarding forest fires. Your editorial speaks of 46,000,000 acres of forest being destroyed in 1929. The chances are that the real destruction was not one twentieth of that acreage. Every little grass or brush fire in forest areas, including those deliberately set for the purpose of burning over the ground under the trees in order to improve pastures, is counted as a destructive fire, and it is assumed that every acre covered is "destroyed." Then again these so-called forest fires run over much the same area year after year, so that there is no such cumulative burned area as might be supposed.

Please let me touch on one other point, and that is the idea that the amount of land artificially reforested each year has any important relation to the problem of future forest supplies. Any forester will tell you that the bulk of the reforestation in America goes on by natural processes and will always continue to do so. Those natural processes are now so far advanced in the cut-over areas of America that they are yielding us 40 per cent of the annual lumber cut of the United States and a large, but unknown, percentage of material required by other forest industries.

Writer Assails Practice of "Pit Fighting" With Dogs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington is now observing "Be Kind to Animals Week," but to how many people will it mean anything more than the mere preaching of a trite phrase?

It is appropriate during this week that all true animal lovers, dog fans in particular, should give serious thought and take practical steps tending toward complete prohibition of a so-called "sport" greatly in vogue among certain elements of Washington.

I refer to the pit fighting of dogs, particularly the English bull, that embodiment of gentleness, faithfulness and intelligence.

We criticize Spain and other Latin countries for the vicious custom of bull fighting; we condemn as brutal and primitive the spirit that prompts men to torture a confused and terrified animal into a frenzy of pain, and yet Washington, Capital of the United States, center of American culture and civilization, permits within its confines the practice of a "sport" equally as brutal as bull fighting! It is a highly uncomplimentary reflection on the American people and their boasted sense of sportsmanship and fair play.

That depraved and savage instinct responsible for breeding and training of animals for the deliberate purpose of tearing each other to pieces in the pit, while a crowd of cheering and bloodthirsty human spectators goads the animals to greater frenzy, is abominable; and those who train dogs for this purpose are not, in any sense, true dog lovers. It is only the physical strength, the fighting prowess, the savage aggressiveness, of their animals, that appeal to such people.

One who has never witnessed a pit fight can not conceive its brutal savagery. It usually means that one dog or the other, perhaps both, will be torn and maimed, possibly for life; that one man's pet or the other's may be hopelessly mutilated or killed. Such a revolting spectacle can not be glorified by the term "sport." There is nothing sportsmanlike about it. It is too much like the ancient Roman arena exhibitions.

What a crying shame to American civilization that our Capital City permits such atrocious practices within its limits!

I appeal to the S. P. C. A., to the Animal Rescue League and to all other humane agencies devoted to the welfare of animals; to all true dog lovers, and to that sense of sportsmanship and fair play so characteristic of the American public in general, to join forces—bring their organized power and influence to bear—in a crusade to permanently abolish pit fighting in the District of Columbia, for this is a purpose worthy of their ideals.

Stimson Host At Woodley to Health Group

Pan-American Delegates to Conferences Are Entertained.

MERELY an imaginary line, the equator, separates states of the Northern and Southern Hemispheres this week as delegates to the second Pan American Conference of Directors of Health and of the members of the directing council of the Pan American Sanitary Bureau weld anew the existing link of friendship in a series of sessions which have been heightened by several festivities.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson received yesterday afternoon at historic Woodley; tonight Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service and director of the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, will entertain at dinner for the delegates, playing host at the Cosmos Club. This noon Mrs. Cumming will give a luncheon in honor of the wives of the delegates and will afterward take them on a tour of Mount Vernon. Yesterday the director general of the Pan American Union, Dr. Lee S. Rowe, entertained at luncheon in the Pan American Building.

Neither rain nor chilly April weather deterred a goodly group of visitors and of officials and their wives from the State Department and Pan-American envoys from attendance at the charming tea at Woodley, where the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson received in delightful rooms, where fires crackled and spring was brought within by numerous bouquets of fruit blossoms.

Even the sweeping rain could not obscure the lovely view of rolling woodland and the far Potomac afforded from the terraces of Woodley and guests, from afar and from the Capital, reveled in the sweeping lawns and flower laden trees that added another festive note to the party.

Among those noted from Washington were the Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Medina and their daughter, Senora de Sacasa, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua and the winsome Senorita Maria Sacasa. Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, in a black and white print with black Watteau hat; Mrs. James F. Rogers, wearing black with touches of white; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming and Capt. Eugene Regnier.

As the line of motors thinned and late afternoon indicated that every one had braved the rain and was within the mansion, the Secretary and Mrs. Stimson joined their guests in the library for informal conversation.

Tonight Dr. Cumming will entertain all of the delegates and a small group of officials. Last night Dr. and Mrs. Cumming entertained at dinner at the Shoreham in honor of Dr. and Mme. Robert Pierret, of Paris, who were also guests yesterday at the reception at Woodley.

Mr. Rowe's guests yesterday at luncheon were: Senor Dr. Gregorio Araoz Alfaro, of Argentina, president national department of health and member of the directing council, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau; Senor Dr. Jose Pedro de Albuquerque, of Brazil, of the national department of health; Senor Dr. Solon Nunez F., of Costa Rica, secretary of public health and social welfare; Senor Dr. Fernando Rensoli, of Cuba, director of health; Senor Dr. Hugo Roberts, of Cuba, chief quarantine officer; Senor Dr. R. Kraus, of Chile, director general of health; Senor Dr. Waldemar Coutts, of Chile, chief social service section, department of health; Senor Dr. Porfirio Dominici, of the Dominican Republic, chief of the Army Medical Corps; Senor Dr. Carlos Leiva, charge d'affaires of El Salvador; Senor Dr. Carlos Padilla, of Guatemala, director general of public health; Dr. Rodolphe Charmant, of Haiti, of the national health service; Capt. Kent C. Melborn, of Haiti.

Also Senor Dr. Jose Ramon Duron, of Honduras, director general of health; Senor Dr. Miguel Bustamante, of Mexico, of the national department of health; Senor Dr. Carlos Enrique Paz Soldan, of Peru, honorary director of the council; Senor Dr. Justo F. Gonzalez, of Uruguay, member of the council, and Senor Dr. Carlos J. Bello, of Venezuela, of the national department of health; Dr. Robert Pierrot, consultant, delegate from France.

United States delegates: Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service and director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau; Dr. Bolivar J. Lloyd, medical director, United States Public Health Service, and assistant to the director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau; Dr. Taliaferro Clark, Dr. F. A. Carmella and Dr. W. L. Treadway, assistant surgeons of the United States Public Health Service.

Additional guests: Mr. Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State; Dr. Luhter M. Reichelderfer and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Commissioners of the District of Columbia; Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer for the District of Columbia; Capt. Joel T. Boone, Dr. W. W. King, medical director of the Coast Guard Service; Dr. Vance B. Murray, Dr. A. A. Moll, scientific editor of the Bulletin of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, and Dr. Esteban Gil Borges, assistant director of the Pan-American Union.

Lieut. Royce And Miss Reed Wed in South

Officers' Swords Form Arch for Couple Married at Columbus, Ga.

In a setting of exquisite beauty, the wedding of Miss Mary Berkeley Reed, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter Lawrence Reed, and Lieut. Charles Harold Royce, was solemnized yesterday at 4:30 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus, Ga. The Rev. S. Alston Wragg read the marriage service in the presence of a brilliant assemblage of Fort Benning and Columbus society.

The picturesque church was decorated with Southern smilax, stately palms and tall vases of ascension lilies. Cathedral candelabra held burning ivory tapers.

To the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding Chorus" the bridal party approached the altar and took their places awaiting the bride. The ushers were Lieuts. D. G. Strickler, C. H. Coates, George Isaacs, Ralph Pulsifer, William S. Biddle and George Lightcap. The bridesmaids included Miss Barbara King, Mrs. William S. P. Coxe, of Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. Norman Caum Miss Celeste Broach, Mrs. John C. Cheesborough, of Asheville, and Mrs. William Breckinridge.

They wore gowns of green tulle made ankle length. Picture hats of green reneux straw and arm bouquets of yellow roses completed the ensembles.

Miss Landon Reed was her sister's maid of honor. Her gown was of yellow tulle with hat and roses to match.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Col. Reed, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Lieut. Norman Caum. Her blonde beauty was accentuated by her wedding gown of ivory satin made along princess lines. A voluminous tulle veil was caught to her head with a cap of rose point lace and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Through an arch formed by the crossed swords of the groomsmen the bridal party departed from the church.

Following the ceremony, Col. and Mrs. Reed entertained at the Polo Hunt Club at Fort Benning. In the receiving line were Col. and Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Blossom Reed, aunt of the bride; Lieut. and Mrs. Royce and the members of the wedding party.

The bride is a member of a family distinguished throughout military circles. She is the granddaughter of the late Walter Reed, in whose honor Walter Reed Hospital was named. She has been a recognized leader among the social sets in Columbus and at Benning, where she was president of the Straight Eights debutante club.

Lieut. Royce, the son of Mrs. James Royce, of Berkeley, Calif., was graduated from West Point in 1924 and for the past few years has been aid de camp to Gen. Campbell King. In the wedding Gen. King, Gen. Frank D. McCoy and Col. and Mrs. Harry Knight represented the bridegroom's family, who were unable to be present. Lieut. Royce and his bride left during the afternoon for a motor trip to New York and will sail from there on May 5 for their new station in Tientsin, China.

Mrs. Clarence Grosner has gone to French Lick Springs, Ind., where she will be for several weeks, and will then visit her family in Cincinnati.

The First Secretary of the Italian Embassy and Contessa Roncalli di Montorio have canceled their social engagements owing to the sudden death of the former's mother, Contessa Roncalli, in Bergamo, Italy, after a brief illness.

CURIOUS listeners continue to ask Phil Cook, NBC's one-man army of voices, if he is a brother of Joe Cook, noted stage comedian. The answer is no. They aren't even related, and Joe Cook's name really isn't that. He is Joseph Lopez, of Spanish and Irish parentage. And he isn't related to Vincent Lopez, the orchestra leader.

Phil Cook, by the way, has a brother who has contributed to radio entertainment. He is Burr Cook, author of the Harbor Lights melodramas and several other radio dramatic sketches.

New York, April 22.

DEAR Dare: Can you please tell us, really and truly now, whether those gorlicious evening pyjamas are really going to be worn or not, and if so, where and how? I am sure lots of your readers would like you to answer this question!

As to the evening pyjama, I have heard a lot about the elegant Parisian having already accepted the evening pyjama for informal dinners in her own home or in the home of friends. But I believe this applies to a very small circle of smart women who can afford any fancy of the moment. If you, too, wish evening pyjamas for your own amusement, to hear your friends say: "Oh, my dear!" and the family say: "Now in my time . . . ," why, have them. But as matters stand now, they can not be worn at any event that even resembles a formal evening, neither at the theater, nor at a dance, nor any sort of an evening reception.

You will all agree that if trousers are rational for scrambling over rocks, or stretching out for a sun bath on the beach, they certainly are irrational for sitting in a drawing room. Besides in no way does a divided skirt enhance the charm and grace of femininity in the evening, so why bother.

• • • •

Good afternoon! Two good afternoons! Which is better, the blue tussor and white organdie one, or the rose tussor with its pleaded skirt and squarely scalloped tiers? I couldn't decide—so I up and sketched them both. Agnes-Drescoll-Beer uses on both of them the minuteness of detail and finish that characterize this season's loveliest frocks.

Perhaps to help you decide, the blue frock boasts a jaunty little jacket with short sleeves, while the rose coat is three-quarter length, with swanky patch pockets and long sleeves.

• • • •

A billion, trillion franc gown, with the least spot on the lingerie cuff, isn't worth any consideration to speak of. A velvet jacquette with the shoulders showing the marks of a wooden coat hanger look shabby, no matter how new it is. 'N' a drawer in the kitchen cabinet, littered and strewn and piled with papers of recipes that you are going to try out at the Sunday night supper, will never yield you the popover recipe when you most long for it. Yet there's the simplest sort of answer, and to find out what it is just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet. It's all about Gadgets! Gadgets that take very little time and even less money, and that keep the loveliest lady in that lovely condition with practically no effort at all! Gadget—o-o-o-h things like stocking-cuff-protectors, kitchen recipe books, glove boxes with door—and ever so many more that you'll have use for every hour in the day!

• • • •

Here's the reminder again—look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in the big Sunday Post—every Sunday.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF April 23d is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 3:15 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. and from 7:10 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 5:15 p. m. to 6:45 p. m.

The astrological signs of April 23d denote day of inactivity, barren of results, except insofar as the accomplishment of routine work is concerned. In the evening, a marked improvement can be anticipated, and the influences will favor social activities.

Children born on this April 23 will be endowed with strong and attractive personalities, and will have the gift of being able to influence others with whom they come in contact, either for good or evil. They will be acquisitive of information, and, though undemonstrative, will love with a strong passion.

Born on April 23, you are, to acquaintances, an enigma. To those who are really your friends, you are generous, sympathetic, and understanding. To the outside world, you hold yourself in reserve, and are distant and constrained. You are not spontaneous or self-revealing, and always act as though on the defensive. When, however, the barriers are broken down, you are at heart a very human sort of person, with warm affections and kindly thoughts.

Although not exceptionally clever, you possess a fund of common sense, and have a clear insight into the workings of others' minds. You are not fated to scale the heights, but you will always "get along." You would do infinitely more, if you could only be more natural, and were more disposed to thaw than to freeze. You have many fine qualities, and these are freely revealed in the home circle or to your intimates. You have courage, strength of purpose, good judgment, and, if a woman, unerring intuition.

If you sometimes feel that you are not appreciated as is your due, this lack of appreciation by the outside world is attributable to the fact that you put your bad apples at the top of the barrel, and carefully stow the good ones at the bottom, with the result that would-be purchasers are afraid to buy.

Successful People Born April 23.

1—James Buchanan, fifteenth President of United States.

2—Stephen A. Douglas, statesman.

3—Chauncey M. Depew, railroad president.

4—Sanford B. Dole, president of Hawaii previous to its annexation.

5—Edwin Markham, educator and poet. "The Man With the Hoe" made him famous.

6—Viscount Allenby, British general.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFARRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Eliot" (also spelled "Elliot," "Elliott," &c.) is found in the earliest English records, but it is generally of French origin. In the great majority of cases it is a French diminutive form of "Elias." The personal name "Elias" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and may be translated "God the Lord" or "Jehovah is God." However, there is evidence that in some cases "Eliot" is a diminutive form of "Ellen," and is therefore a metronymic or mother's name. "Ellen" is a variation of "Helen." The personal name "Helen" is of Greek origin, and may be translated "sunlight." The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain Henry Elyot and a Thomas Elyot.

The family name "MacNary" (also written "MacNarry," "Manary" and "Neary") is of Celtic origin. It appears to have originated in Ulster. Its source is the Irish "Mac Naradh-Haigh," which means "the son of Naradhach." The personal name "Naradhach" means "the noble one."

"Paul" was a very common personal name throughout Europe at the time when personal names were becoming hereditary, that is, when they were becoming adopted as family names. For that reason various forms of "Paul" are now found as family names in all the countries of Europe. Some of the many French diminutive forms which were introduced into England at an early date are "Paulet," "Paulett," "Pauley," "Paulin" and "Paullin." In some cases "Paulin" was changed to "Pauling" through the influence of the many English names ending in "ing." In Germany the commonest forms of this family name at the present time are "Paul," "Paule," "Pauly," "Pauling," "Paulsohn," "Paulson" and "Paulsen." The personal name "Paul" is of Latin origin, and means "little."

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD.

SELFISH PARENTS.

MY Dear Frances McDonald: You have helped so many, do you think that you can help me?

Here is my problem: What is a girl to do who has a family who thinks she is too young to go out on dates? My family say, "Oh, you will meet some nice boys one of these days." Now, please do not think that I am boy crazy or anything like that, but a girl who will be 20 next August should be allowed to have a little more freedom than I have, don't you think? Now, for example, here is what my father wants to know every time I go out in the daytime: "Where are you going? What are you going to do? How long will you be?" &c. And on top of that, if I come in one minute later than he thinks I ought to have, then I have to account for everything I have done. My mother is not like that at all.

Father is not home in the daytime very often. If he was I think I would go crazy. I had quite a number of boys who came to see me last summer and father seemed quite pleased with my choice, yet when they came to see me during Christmas holidays he shut the door in their faces.

I would leave home today if I had been trained for a position. But I have eye trouble and could never work. My mother has never told me a thing about men. If it had not been for a very dear friend, I do not know what might have happened to me.

GRACE.

Leaving home would not help you in the least, my dear.

Your father is decidedly eccentric in his behavior. Tell your mother that you consider him unmannerly and that you expect courtesy to be extended to your guests. If you do not assert yourself a barren life awaits you as the victim of two self-centered and selfish people who are interested in nothing in life but their own ideas and own comfort.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I TRIED hanging my geraniums in the cellar this winter and they are still alive. Kindly tell me when would be the best time to plant them and would you cut them down at all? They are pretty tall.

MISS HELEN S.

Better take off cuttings at this time. This will mean a number of fine young plants in a few weeks and a number of old plants which, when they send forth new growth, will be well suited for the center or back of your beds. Old plants which have been cut back are never specially shapely, but they will produce fine, large flowers.

Please tell me how to transplant a fern which I want to divide into three pieces. MISS M. B.

Remove plant from pot, keeping as much soil intact as possible. Lay root on a board and with a sharp knife divide root into three pieces. Then immediately plant each piece in a separate pot, using a soil composed of good loam, sand and manure of equal parts. After watering plants, set them in a rather shady place for a few days.

Inclosed please find an ivy leaf, which you will see is attacked by some insect. Is this scale? Please tell me how to get rid of insects. Also how to make a geranium bloom which has not flowered since I brought it into the house last fall. It gets plenty of sun and not too much water, but all it does is develop leaves. My fuchsia also grows beautifully, but does not bloom in the house. EMILY C. K.

Your ivy is attacked by scale. Better go over each leaf with a small brush and scrub away the insects. Daily spraying with cold water will prevent a return of these pests. A geranium that has flowered all summer will be resting in winter. In summer, when it is again in the open, it will no doubt begin to bloom. It would be well at this time to take off cuttings from the old plant. You will thus have a fine, young specimen and the old plant will be better for being cut back. Try giving your fuchsia liquid manure or bonemeal at this time.

Please tell me how to care for my lawn at this time. FRANK H. G.

To have a fine lawn you must feed it. Better begin by giving it a careful raking. Then apply a liberal amount of grass seed to the bare places. Next give the entire area an application of bonemeal or sheep manure. Then give the lawn a good watering to carry the food down to the feeding roots. A light application of plant food should be given once in every eight weeks. This discourages weeds by producing a strong, healthy and close sward of grass.

My cyclamen is through blooming. I have stopped watering it, so what shall I now do with the plant?

MRS. EVA W.

Set it aside until late August, when you must remove the dead tops and begin to water it, sparingly at first until growth starts, then more liberally. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you a circular on the care of cyclamen which we have prepared for readers of this column.

Please tell me the name of the yellow rose from China which is suitable for planting near the edge of a bank. I want it to ramble over the side of the bank. MAUD H.

Hugonis. A beautiful and worthwhile variety.

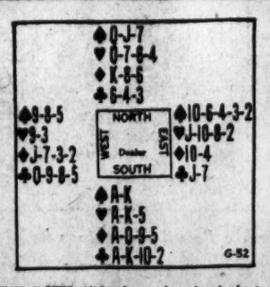
WORK ON BRIDGE



WITH the above hand at Auction South would secure an uncontested contract of one No Trump. At Contract South bid four No Trumps. His unusually high count of 27 was the exact requirement for this bid. North, with a count of 8, bid six No Trumps.

West led the Five of Clubs, South, false-carding with the Ace, won East's Jack and paused to look the situation over. He could count 11 sure tricks, with an extra trick in Hearts and another in Diamonds if the adverse cards were evenly divided. He immediately unblocked the Spade suit by playing his Ace and King. He won two rounds of Hearts in his own hand, and a third with dummy's Queen. When West's Spade discard on the third round disclosed the uneven Heart break, dummy's Queen of Spades was played. South and West each discarded a Club. Declarer then tacked the Diamonds. On the third round, won by South's Queen, East discarded. Declarer next played his King of Clubs and surrendered. West won the last two tricks, setting the contract one trick. Could South have overcome the unfortunate distribution he found against him in his three seven-card suits?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

South played this hand perfectly, till the eleventh trick. At that stage he should have taken "time out"—and done a bit of counting. West had discarded a Spade on the third round of Hearts, and a Club on the third round of Spades. West's three remaining cards therefore are in the minor suits. West's original Club lead was from a four-card suit, and one Club has been discarded. West holds two Clubs, one of which must be the Queen, or he would have led originally his four-card Diamond suit headed by the Jack. (East's discard on the third round of Diamonds marks West with this original holding.) West's three cards therefore are the Queen of Clubs, a small Club, and the Jack of Diamonds. By leading a Diamond and putting West in the lead, Declarer forces West to lead a Club up to Declarer's King-Ten. South thus wins the last two tricks, and a small slam.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sernusky

RINGING THE BELL
AMONG THE MOST POPULAR PASTIMES AT EARLY FAIRS WAS WHERE YOU HIT A STAKE WITH A HAMMER AND DROVE A METAL KNOCKER UPWARD TOWARD THE BELL. THE MAN WHO COULD HIT HARD ENOUGH "RANG THE BELL."
LAND-OFFICE BUSINESS
WHEN PUBLIC LANDS WERE SOLD IN THE WEST, THE GOVERNMENT OPENED VARIOUS OFFICES. THESE WERE BESIEGED WITH BUYERS WHO WANTED TO BE EARLY TO GET DESIRABLE PROPERTY. THAT STARTED THE PHRASE.
WHITE-LIVERED
AT ONE TIME THE ANCIENTS BELIEVED THAT THE LIVER WAS THE SEAT OF PASSIONS SUCH AS ANGER, LOVE AND FEAR. FROM THEIR BELIEF THAT FEAR TURNED THE LIVER WHITE, WE RECEIVED THIS PHRASE TO EXPRESS COWARDICE.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE ENEMY, TUBERCLE BACILLUS.

THAT tuberculosis is coming under control is one conclusion which Prof. Van Es draws from the most extensive research on types of tuberculosis that have ever been conducted in America, if not in the world. His conclusion is based on the small number of specimens of tuberculosis in children and the larger proportion of bovine tuberculosis in specimens received from adult human beings. He concludes that people from whom these specimens came were infected in childhood and the disease did not develop until maturity.

The evidence indicates that few children are now being infected; that the eradication campaigns against tuberculosis in cows and those for pasteurization of milk are accomplishing results. While Prof. Van Es works at the University of Nebraska, his specimens came from without as well as within his State. He found that the tubercle bacillus which caused far the greater part of tuberculosis in human beings was the human bacillus. The campaign to control consumption in human beings needs to be bolstered. It is not keeping pace with that directed against bovine tuberculosis.

Another conclusion is that man has but little to fear from avian tuberculosis, at least in America. Of all the tubercular specimens from human beings, gathered from widly scattered sources, there was not one which contained avian tubercle bacilli. Some cases of avian tuberculosis in humans have been reported from Europe, but, says the essayist, "the hazard, at least in this country, is apparently a slight one." However, we must not hold the danger of avian tuberculosis too lightly. Any type of tubercle bacillus, however harmless, may become harmful. We must not accept any one of them as being a friend, or even a friendly enemy.

The avian bacillus may not endanger man's life, but it eats big holes in his pocketbook. Tuberculosis in chickens is very expensive and practically all of that and much of the hog tuberculosis is due to the avian bacillus.

This study of Dr. Van Es showed that the human bacillus was responsible for most of the bone and gland tuberculosis in humans. The old teaching that surgical tuberculosis was generally contracted from cows and rarely from humans was probably true once upon a time, but it is no longer so.

WHAT A BUNION IS.

S. D. writes:

1. What is a bunion? Is it a state of a bone grown crooked, or a mass of fat and callus?
2. Can it be cured?
3. How?

REPLY.

1. It is a combination. First there is displaced bone. Next, thickening of bone. Third, overgrowth of soft tissues. Fourth, formation of a corn or its equivalent.
2. Yes.
3. A few cases are cured by wearing protective pads. More cases are cured by wearing broad shoes, toe straighteners, and protective pads. Many cases require operation. Most of these require an operation to straighten the displaced bones and joints. A few call for cutting away of enlarged bones.

Hoover to Attend Rites on Lee Link

Will Break Ground May 1 on Boulevard Route at Fort Buffalo.

Richmond, Va., April 22 (A.P.).—President Hoover will participate in two Virginia celebrations within a week. He will attend religious services observing the 324th anniversary of the landing of the cavaliers at Cape Henry next Sunday, and break ground for the Lee boulevard link connecting the National Capital with the Shenandoah National Park at Fort Buffalo May 1.

Formal announcement of the President's official visits to Virginia was made today by Gov. Pollard.

At Fort Buffalo the President will turn the first spade of earth in formal recognition of the beginning of work on the 6-mile stretch of 40-foot highway to the southern approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge. There, too, he will be welcomed by Gov. Pollard, who will be accompanied by William E. Carson, conservation and development commissioner, and representatives of the Virginia Highway Commission.

Youth Names Man In Fatal Shooting

Baltimore Boy, 18, Admits Part in Trying to Rob Milk Collector.

Baltimore, Md., April 22 (A.P.).—An 18-year-old youth has confessed, police asserted today, that he took part in the attempted holdup Monday which resulted in the fatal shooting of John Anderson, 42, a milk collector.

The youth, Dale H. Lambert, named as his companion a Baltimore man, and declared the other fired the fatal shot when Anderson resisted. The man Lambert named was sought today at the home of his widowed mother in New York City.

The youth was arrested yesterday after a chase of several blocks by officers who sought to question him. He tossed away a revolver as he was captured. Anderson was shot in the back as two men accosted him in the Guilford residential section. He died four hours later in a hospital.

...n the zone by angle parking, thereby blocking two lanes of traffic, instead of pulling close to the curb.

He reported that "only a few complaints" had been received against the regulations. He said several physicians expressed disfavor because the new rules also would prevent them from parking anywhere in the congested zone during the hour and one-half period. Inspector Brown said emergency cases for doctors could be excepted on their respective merits.

Rules Applied Elsewhere.

The new regulations also applied in lesser form to Zone No. 2 and Zone No. 3. One-hour parking is permitted between 8 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock at night in Zone No. 2, which embraces Zone No. 1.

It is bounded on the north by L street, starting at Eighteenth street and running east to Fifth street, and thence along New York avenue to Fourth street; on the east by a line from Fourth street to I street to Sixth street, down Sixth street to Constitution avenue; on the south by Constitution avenue to Fifteenth street; on the west by a line along Fifteenth street north to New York avenue, west to Seventeenth street, down Seventeenth street to G street, west on G street to Eighteenth street and north to L street.

In zone 3, embracing the other two zones, parking is permitted for a two-hour period from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock at night. It runs from the intersection of New Hampshire avenue, Twentieth and N streets northwest, east along N street to Third street, south along Third street to Maryland avenue.

Along Maryland Avenue.

It extends in a westerly direction along Maryland avenue to B street southwest, west on B street to Fourteenth street southwest, north on Fourteenth street to Constitution avenue, west on Constitution avenue to Seventeenth street, north on Seventeenth street to F street, west on F street to Twentieth street, and north on Twentieth street to the starting point.

Officials of the District, Maryland and Virginia met here yesterday at the first of several conferences to discuss the feasibility of adopting a uniform code of traffic rules.

They included District Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, Inspector Brown, Traffic Director William H. Garland, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst and George H. Offutt, of the District; Wilbur C. Hall, J. Fred Birrell and Frank J. Ball, of Virginia, and A. B. Barber, T. G. Sasscer and H. M. Lucious, of Maryland.

29 KILLED AND MANY SHOT IN HONDURAN-REVOLT BATTLES

Railroad line, near San Pedro, it was reported tonight.

Government troops repelled the attack and forced the insurgents to withdraw. The Loyalists were commanded in the battle by Col. Alfredo Reina, Col. David Tablada, Col. Juan Castillo and Col. Carlos Andino. The exact number of casualties was undetermined. Government circles were informed that it had been definitely established that Gen. Gregorio Ferrera is in supreme command of the revolutionary forces.

A central general staff was organized here during the day to supervise operations of the government troops. Red Cross representatives have been sent to the Cortez region, which was thratened by the rebels. American women and children have been evacuated from that section to Tela, which was considered less open to attack.

(Associated Press.)

What Secretary Stimson called a "quieting situation in Honduras and continued quiet in Nicaragua" was reported to the Government yesterday by commanders of its warships along the recently disturbed coasts of the two Central American countries.

Even around San Pedro Sula, where Tuesday the Honduran revolution appeared to survive with some vigor, all was quiet. Capt. Ralph A. Koch, aboard the cruiser Marblehead at the nearby port of Puerto Cortez, said reports of fighting near San Pedro Sula appeared unfounded. Elsewhere insurgents were reported breaking up into small groups and offering no resistance to government troops.

At La Ceiba the cruiser Memphis reported that cargoes were being loaded as usual.

Rear Admiral Arthur St. Clair Smith, aboard his flagship, the cruiser Rochester, reported he had visited Cape Gracios, a Dios, at the northern end of the Nicaraguan coast, and found all quiet, although there was some fear of a repetition of the recent raid on the port. Bluefields and Puerto Cabezas were peaceful.

Col. F. L. Bradman, commanding the Marine brigade at Managua, transmitted reports of two recent brushes between Nicaraguan guardia detachments and insurgent bands in the eastern district in which five insurgents were killed without loss to the guardia.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

Junkin Home Scene of Fete For Princess

Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein to Show Paintings.

Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin entertained at a musicale last evening at her home on Sixteenth street in honor of her guest, Princess Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, who has been in this country for some time.

The artists for the evening were Miss Florence Trumble, well-known pianist from New York, and Mr. Jurien Hoekster, barytone, who was accompanied by Mr. Robert Wilson.

Following the musicale there was a private showing of the paintings of the princess which will be open for the public from today until June 1, at the home of Mrs. Junkin. The princess came to this country several months ago, and has been motoring in her "caravan" through the plains, valleys and mountains of the East sketching and painting whatever beautiful and appealing landscapes and marines caught her eye. The exhibit includes also portraits and still-life paintings. Later in the evening the company was entertained at a supper, followed by dancing.

Princess Alexandria Victoria came to Washington from Palm Beach, where she had been visiting and finishing some of her work. A recent accident in the rough surf, which shocked the princess, has prevented her from taking an active part in society since her arrival, but she is recovering now, and Tuesday evening Mrs. Junkin gave a dinner in her honor, after which they attended the concert given by Mr. Maxim Karolik.

Mr. and Mrs. Beale R. Howard announce the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Edythe Howard Manning to Mr. Harry Kendall Hickey, of this city. The wedding, which will be simply arranged with about 50 guests present, will take place in the home of Mrs. Manning, 3001 Forty-fourth street, Thursday afternoon, May 7, at 4 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Troth, jr., of Chevy Chase, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emma Rebecca Troth, to Mr. Robert P. Dunlop, son of the late Thomas Dunlop, of Chevy Chase. The marriage, which was held in Ellicott City on January 10, 1931, was performed by the Rev. H. D. Stewart, of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Chester Marvin Shaffer, of Chevy Chase, was the best man.

Mrs. Adam M. Wyant, wife of Representative Wyant, who returned to her apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for the opening of the D. A. R. convention, has gone to Blue Ridge with the house party of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kauffman. From there she will motor to her home in Greensburg, Pa., where she will remain during the summer.

Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard have with them the latter's mother, Mrs. M. P. Sanderson, of Texarkana, Tex., who is in Washington to attend the D. A. R. convention. Mrs. Sanderson was hostess to a group of 50 of the Texas delegates at a luncheon in the Shoreham yesterday.

Jerry Charteres, Appearing in Liquor Trial, Admits He Is J. F. Beers.

A sensational development in the trial of fourteen defendants on an indictment charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws occurred yesterday before Justice Oscar Luhring.

Jerry Charteres, who was originally one of the defendants, and who had entered a plea of guilty on the opening day of the trial, admitted that his real name was Jerry Frank Beers and that he had sworn falsely when he testified that his name, when he came to the stand, was Jerry Charteres.

Under a severe grilling by defense attorneys, E. Russell Kelley and James A. O'Shea, Charteres said that he had changed his name so that his folks in New Jersey would not know of his activities here. He said, in response to further questioning, he had been married to his wife in Alexandria under the name of Charteres.

Charteres, who took the stand as a Government witness, was temporarily excused when the attorneys indicated that they desired to peruse Police Court records to see if he had ever been convicted on any charge there.

Roger Butts, erstwhile Capitol undercover dry agent, resumed the stand late in the day and related numerous liquor purchases from several of the defendants. Afterward, he testified, he got a job with Charteres and others and worked in the midst of the ring.

Assistant United States Attorneys James Kirkland and John J. Wilson are prosecuting the case.

Grant Will Recommend Revised Bridge Plans

Revised plans for development of the Rock Creek and Potomac parkway in the vicinity of the P Street Bridge will be presented to the District Commissioners in the next few days by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks.

A recommendation will be made for a cheaper bridge than originally proposed. Tentative plans call for a structure about 90 feet wide and costing between $50,000 and $85,000.

Cleanliness Contest Prizes Given by Club

The Twentieth Century Club yesterday awarded prizes to District employes adjudged winners in a cleanliness contest at a ceremony in the board room of the District Building.

The four groups of winners were: Street cleaning, John Rhodes, first; William Coles, second, and Norman Simmons, honorable mention; garbage collection, Presley Crosley, Raymond Tobias and John Williams; trash collection, Alonzo Reynolds and Harvey Moore, and William Adams; ash collection, James Sims, Paul Wanzer and Guy Ramserie.

SCHOOL STEEL WORK IS WRECKED BY WIND

structure at the site back of the Macfarland Junior High School, on Iowa avenue near Allison street northwest, failed to withstand the buffeting of the 39 mile an hour wind, the highest maximum reported in the Capital by the Weather Bureau.

William T. Toyne, a watchman at the site, had just passed by on his rounds when the heavy iron girders fell. He missed being on the spot by a few seconds.

Following the fall workmen were called out to survey the damage and were busy preparing for the work of clearing away the steel which will begin this morning. Interested students of classes at the school were warned away from the excavation by watchmen who feared that other girders or the hoist used for carrying the beams skyward might fall.

John A. McDonald, president of the National Construction Co., a Washington concern which has the contract for the new building, minimized the damage last night.

He said that while he had not visited the site, his superintendent had called him by telephone and reported that a couple of beams had fallen in and that the work would not be greatly delayed. The superintendent reported that the site could be cleared in about 40 minutes.

He said the work had not been completed on the steel structure and that it had not been finally connected up. The winds were too strong for the incompleted structure, the superintendent reported, Mr. McDonald said.

The contract for steel work on the school building had been sublet by his concern to the Lehigh Structural Steel Co., a Pennsylvania firm, Mr. McDonald said, and no responsibility for this part of the labor fell on his company or on the District government.

Erroneous reports that the wind had demolished a house on P street between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh streets northwest sent the Fire Rescue Squad, several fire companies and an array of policemen to the neighborhood yesterday afternoon.

They disovered that the wind had blown from the side of a dwelling at 3622 P street northwest a small strip of overhanging framework which workmen several months ago had failed to remove in tearing down an adjoining house. Margaret Williams, colored, 18 years old, was in the residence at the time.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

Mountain Blazes Halted by Showers

Firemen, Near Exhaustion, Say Spread Is Stopped in Maryland.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 22.—A heavy shower came late today to conquer mountain fires, which had gotten beyond control during the past two days in the mountains west and northwest of Hagerstown.

Firefighters, several hundred in number and near exhaustion, were returning from the mountains tonight with reports that the rain had accomplished what they had failed to do.

The fire which this morning again had surrounded the Catholic Church near Indian Springs, and was burning toward several small settlements, was quickly brought under control with the aid of the showers, while reports from Blairs Valley, where fire had burned more than 5,500 acres stated that this fire too, was under control.

GROVE HOLDS NATS AT BAY AS MACKS WIN, 5-1

Ruth's Left Leg Collapses; Feared Lost to New York For Month, Is Indication

Babe Suffers Severe "Charley Horse" as Club Gains Lead.

Series of Accidents Trails Star; Red Sox Bow, 7-5.

BOSTON, April 22 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees opened the American League season here today by defeating the Red Sox, 7 to 5, but the victory may prove a costly one.

Babe Ruth's left leg went back on him while he was furnishing considerable assistance to his teammates in drubbing the Red Sox—and the slugger was carried off the field to a hospital.

An X-ray was taken of the injured member. It disclosed no breaks in any of the bones, and baseball's dynamic personality was placed in bed under observation for the night.

Dr. Francis Newton, the attending physician, did not say how long the cohorts of Joe McCarthy would have to do without Ruth's services.

Up to the time he was carried from the field Ruth had accounted for five runs, scoring two and driving in three with two singles and a double.

The game itself practically was decided in the first inning, when the Yanks scored four times off Lisenbee and Durham.

Accidents Trail Slugger.

A combination of accidents were believed responsible for the Babe's injury. In the sixth inning he doubled and slid into second. His battering teammate, Lou Gehrig, drove out a hit and Ruth advanced to third. He rounded the bag, but turned his ankle in doing so. He took time out and rubbed the ankle, but resumed play a moment later. He scored on another drive, but was blocked at the plate by Charlie Berry, Sox catcher, and was thrown heavily to the ground.

Ruth took his place in left field in the last part of the inning and started after Tom Oliver's long drive to the fence near the foul line. While running, Babe's leg gave way beneath him and he fell. He was unable to get up and two Red Sox runs crossed the plate, while Oliver stopped at second.

Yankee teammates rushed to Ruth's aid, but he was unable to stand up and was carried from the field. He was removed to the clubhouse, where an examination showed the injury was to his left thigh instead of his ankle, as most of the spectators believed.

OLD HURLERS PRAISED BY M'KECHNIE

Manager of Braves Agreeeably Surprised at Team's Pace.

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.

NEW YORK, April 22 (A.P.).—Bill McKechnie likes the way his Braves have sailed into the National League race, and that makes it practically unanimous up Boston way. Seven out of nine against such clubs as Brooklyn and New York is pretty good, the Braves' chief admitted today.

"You know, I'm a pessimist," McKechnie confided. "I can't see how some of these fellows get the idea that we'll beat out such clubs as Pittsburgh. But my boys are going mighty good. We're liable to give them a race, at that."

Praises Work Of Pitchers.

"Did you notice how my pitchers are going? Say, that Ed Brandt, Tom Zachary and old 'Socks' Seibold have each pitched a couple of the finest games I ever saw. Brandt had as much against the Giants yesterday as any pitcher in the game. And my other old-timer, Sherdel, has been doing fine work. So have the youngsters, Frankhouse, Cantwell and Cunningham."

"We've got a team that can go out and get some runs this season," McKechnie said. "It's changed the whole spirit of the team. My pitchers feel that if they can hold the opposition to two or three runs they are pretty likely to win. They don't feel like they have to bear down on every throw. The same with my infield. It's playing farther back and getting balls that went for hits last year, when it had to stay in close and try to cut off every run.

"Red Worthington and Earl Sheely have added a lot of punch to the lineup. I like both of them. They're betting around Boston that Berger won't hit .300 with the new ball, but they're wrong. I can't see any difference in the ball and neither can my pitchers. Maybe a drive takes a little more 'English' when it hits the ground, but that's all."

Giants Loom Stronger Than Robins.

Of the two clubs the Braves have encountered so far, McKechnie is inclined to like the Giants. He realizes the Robins are not as helpless as they looked in losing four straight to his team, but he believes McGraw's outfit has the edge.

"The Giants are going to be tough all the way," he declared. "They are likely to give the Cardinals a great battle. In fact, if 'Chick' Hafey doesn't report, I doubt very much St. Louis will repeat. They need him plenty."

Cards, Opening Home Season, Beat Reds, 3-2

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 22 (A.P.).—Welcomed home by chilly weather but with 7,500 fans clamoring for another pennant-winning team, the Cardinals supported Johnson's pitching with heavy hitting and won their first home game of the season today, defeating Cincinnati, 3-2. The Cardinals scored their first run in the initial inning, but Roettger's homer in the fifth, the first hit off Johnson, tied the score and the Reds took a one-run lead in the sixth. St. Louis evened the count in the seventh and added a run in the eighth. Bottomley and Watkins, with three hits each, made it hard going for Kolp, who was supplanted by Frey. Johnson struck out six Reds, three of the strike outs being in the second inning, while at bat he contributed a triple his first time up.

Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, of Missouri, pitched out the first ball to Mayor Victor J. Miller, of St. Louis, and participated in the ceremonies of raising the National League pennant won last year by the Cardinals.

Greater G. U. Outlined by Rev. Nevils

Plans for Expansion Told at Dinner in Athletes' Honor.

To Build Huge Gymnasium; La Follette Praises Sports.

AMID tributes to Georgetown athletes of the past and present, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the university, outlined plans for a "Greater Georgetown" last night at the annual Varsity "G" dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, painting a pleasing picture of future development at the Hilltop for the 300 alumni and guests in attendance.

Father Nevils announced extensive plans for the concentration of the various educational departments at the Hilltop and the increase of athletic facilities for Georgetown students, chief of which is the erection of a monster gymnasium on property already purchased by the institution taking in the block bounded by Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh streets and N and O streets northwest.

The gymnasium floor, which will have a seating capacity of 6,500, will be 235 feet by 134 feet, with two balconies which will seat 1,600 additional. The building will also contain a large swimming pool with space for 700 spectators. Two thousand lockers will be provided.

INSRT——A ... ...

On the old Prep Field, where spring football practice is now in progress, a group of tennis courts will be erected and the Freshman Field will be converted into hand ball and racquet courts under the plan of Father Nevils.

Despite the athletic reform that has swept the country in the wake of shouts of overemphasis, Georgetown does not plan any drastic changes in policy nor any reduction in the sparts curriculum. Father Nevils set at rest reports that baseball will be discontinued.

A tribute to athletics as an important factor in the development of character and citizenship was paid by Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, chief guest speaker.

Senator La Follette expressed the hope that Georgetown might meet his alma mater, the University of Wisconsin, in football. Declaring himself a close follower of Georgetown athletics, the senator said he hoped for a Georgetown victory in every game, except when Georgetown played Wisconsin. "Then, may the best team win," he added.

College athletics and football, in particular, were defended by Wallace C. Wade, former coach of the champion Alabama eleven, and now head coach at Duke University, and by Tommy Mills, head coach of Georgetown.

Decrying shouts of overemphasis in football, Coach Wade declared it significant that the attacks on football were heard only during the dull season when busybodies were otherwise unoccupied. He pointed out one danger of athletics, however, the custom of granting special privileges to athletes by many colleges and high schools, thus failing to teach the youths the necessity of self-reliance and hard work.

San Francisco Entry Wins in Cue Tourney

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 22 (A.P.).—Joseph Hall, of San Francisco, won his second match in the national amateur three-cushion billiard championship tournament today, defeating Anthony Clesi, of Beaumont, Tex., 50 to 45, in 117 innings.

The game broke the long-inning record of 116 set in a match between E. C. Wainwright, of Pittsburgh, and Charles Carder, of Buffalo, N. Y., at Buffalo, in 1928. Hall has won two and lost one while Clesi had dropped three straight.

Pirates Buy Osborn, Pitcher, From Cubs

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 22 (A.P.).—Bob Osborn, right-handed pitcher, today was obtained by the Pittsburgh Pirates from the Chicago Cubs. Acquisition of the hurler is expected to strengthen the locals' mound corps which has been weakened so far this season by illness.

Osborn, who was born in Texas in 1903, started out with the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League in 1923. He was sold to Chicago in the fall of 1925, but later was farmed to Reading and Los Angeles. All told, he has been in the majors four seasons. His record with the Cubs last year was ten victories and six defeats.

The Pirate management, in announcing the purchase tonight, declined to state the amount paid for the new man.

CENTRAL RAINED OUT.

Rain intervened in the scheduled baseball game between Episcopal High, of Alexandria, and Central High, of Washington. The postponed contest will be played later on a date agreeable to the managers of both teams.

Tilden is now winding up a transcontinental tour with Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian professional.

Dempsey Aims to Stage Title Bout In Nevada, Is Reno Announcement

RENO, Nev., April 22 (A.P.).—Promotion of a heavyweight championship match here was announced today by Jack Dempsey, former king of that division, as another reason for his residence in Reno. Dempsey recently arrived with the announced intention of establishing a legal home and suing his wife, Estelle Taylor, of the movies, for a divorce.

Today, in announcing plans for remaining in Reno in expectation of promoting the championship fight, the former fighter made no mention of his matrimonial troubles. Miss Taylor, in Hollywood, has said she will not agree to her husband's suit, but will file similar action on her own behalf in California.

Thirty years ago the talk in the talkies was even more real than it is today, though perhaps not always so well timed. Silent films without captions were used, and the sound was furnished by actors in the rear of the screen. The speakers behind the screen could see the picture, and as the lips of the screen actors moved the speakers delivered the necessary lines.

Strange as it seems, the only wolverines in Michigan, the "Wolverine State," are those in the zoos. As far as can be determined there have been no wild wolverines in Michigan for the last 55 years. There are numerous stories as to how the State came to be termed the "Wolverine State" and any one of them may be true, but certainly it was not because of any great number of native wolverines.

Critz's Homer Starts Winning Rally in Homecoming.

NEW YORK, April 22 (A.P.).—The Giants opened their home season at the Polo Grounds auspiciously today by coming from behind to defeat the Phillies, 5 to 4, before 40,000 fans.

Hughie Critz's homer off Benge in the seventh started a three-run rally that sewed up the game. Lindstrom scored what proved the winning run on Jackson's squeeze bunt down the foul line. Though hit hard, Clarence Mitchell went the route for the winners.

CHICAGO, April 22 (A.P.).—Knocking Mel Harder, Pete Jablonowski and Pay Thomas around in the seventh and eighth inning, the Chicago White Sox opened their home season here today with a 10-to-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians. Pat Caraway pitched for the Sox and limited the Indians to eight hits and shut them out after the second frame.

Fred Eichrodt featured the Chicago attack with four hits and a sacrifice in five trips to the plate, batting in four runs. Young Joe Vosmik continued his terrific hitting with two singles and a double in four times at bat. Cold weather held the attendance to 5,000.

ZACHARY 4-0 VICTOR OVER DODGERS

Braves' Veteran Gives 4 Hits; Maranville Stars at Bat.

BROOKLYN, April 22 (A.P.).—A couple of sprightly veterans, Tom Zachary and Rabbit Maranville, contrived to utterly spoil the official homecoming of the Robins today as the Boston Braves made it five straight over the flock, 4 to 0.

While Zachary pitched the Braves' third victory in three days, holding the Robins to four widely scattered hits, Maranville provided the runs. The 38-year-old Rabbit scored two personally and drove in the other pair.

So well did Zachary have the Dodgers subdued that pinch hitters were inserted for Babe Herman and Lefty O'Doul in the last inning.

Home Run by Cronin Enables Nats to Escape Shutout.

25,000 See Champions Open Season at Home Park.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 22.—It was a drab and windy afternoon for the 25,000 fans who journeyed to Shibe Park to see Connie Mack's Philadelphians open their home season and it also proved to be mighty drab for Pitcher Irving (Bump) Hadley in particular and for the Washington team in general, for the Athletics were credited with victory to the tune of 5 to 1. This one Nat run was the result of a homer by Cronin in the second, with Cochrane matching it in the eighth.

Beside the Nationals' opening ceremonies, those of the Mackmen were quite simple. The Wingate American Legion Post furnished the music; there was the usual march to the flag pole, with Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis and Mayor Harry Mackey showing the way; Capts. Joe Judge and Eddie Collins pulled the American flag and the Mackmen's championship pennant up the pole; the mayor tossed out the first ball, and the ball game was on.

Macks Give Star Early Lead.

Bob Moses (Lefty) Grove and Hadley drew the pitching assignments and the Mackmen made things easy for their southpaw ace by scoring enough runs to win in the very first inning, during which Hadley was excused from work and Carl Fischer given an opportunity of turning in a brilliant relief shift.

It was not the slugging ability of the Mackmen which put them over, but rather two mighty nifty bunts which ruined the day for Hadley. After the Nat pitcher had walked Bishop as a starter, Haas laid down a pretty one which he beat out with ease. Then Cochrane followed suit. Bluege charged in for the ball but Hadley scooped it up, wheeled to throw to third, saw that that base was uncovered, and then found it was too late to make an out anywhere else.

This filled the bases with none out and Simmons' useful out and two more or less lucky hits resulted in four runs. Miller was credited with a single, which was out of Bluege's reach by only a matter of inches, while Todt cleared the

WHITNEY'S FALL APPLE, 11-1, WINS $10,000 ABERDEEN

A. Robertson Wins With Bold Ride

Sends Mount Through on Rail to Beat Westy Junior.

Stepen Fetchit Is 3d; Anchors Aweigh, Off Last, Wins.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22. A crowd of 15,000 saw a decided upset in the nineteenth renewal of the $10,000 added Aberdeen States, when Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Fall Apple, son of Pennant—Edin, led home fifteen other 2-year-olds to take down a $13,850 purse.

Albert Robertson, who drove Fall Apple to victory, registered his third victory of the day and his eleventh of the meeting.

It was Robertson's chance-taking attempt at the stretch turn that won for Fall Apple, for he slipped through on the rail, and, although almost pinched back at the eighth pole, batted his mount viciously to have him in the lead at the sixteenth pole. He then drew away to win from H. T. Archbald's Westy Junior, with Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepen Fetchit and the Middleburg Stable's General Advance next in line.

Westy Junior outran the field from the break, but Golden Gate and Wise Count went along with him to the stretch turn. When the leaders went a bit wide, Robertson took a chance and drove through with Fall Apple. He got through safely and this won a race that appeared hopelessly lost a few seconds before.

Portam and Wise Count, both unbeaten in previous starts and the first and second choices in the wagering, finished back in the ruck.

Anchors Aweigh, Off Last, Scores.

The Greentree Stable's Anchors Aweigh, qualified for the $10,000 Chesapeake on Saturday when he picked up 117 pounds and raced a mile and 70 yards in 1:45 4-5, to win the Shenandoah, the day's secondary feature.

Off last in the six-horse field, due to his bad post acting, Anchors Aweigh trailed his field until straightened out on the back stretch. When Kurtsinger let him down, he gradually picked up his field, to be third turning for home.

William Zeigler, jr.'s Levante, the pacemaker, and Mrs. Margaret Amory's War, who were leading in the stretch, were soon collared by Anchors Aweigh, and at the sixteenth pole Kurtsinger started easing the ultimate winner as he had the race in hand at the point.

Rancocas' Hobnob Takes Opener.

The Rancocas Stable's Hobnob, under a powerful ride by Albert Robertson, took a band of eleven 2-year-olds into camp in the day's 4½-furlong opener.

Well up from the start, Hobnob made his bid in the home stretch and, under Robertson's lashing, drew up to even terms with Society Talk, the pacemaker, at the sixteenth pole and then went on to a handy score. Society Talk easily held Brush Up, the favorite, safe in the battle for the place money.

The program opened under lowering clouds, but the track was lightning fast.

Alwington Dolly Breezes Home

The Alwington Stable's Alwington Dolly, 4-year-old bay daughter of Leonardo II-Xenora, raced 6 furlongs in 1:13 1-5 to win the second.

Coltiletti broke her atop her field of twelve and at no stage of the race could her opponents get close. Anchor Light and Your Flag raced to the place and show positions respectively.

Ral Parr's Dunlin's Lad raced three-quarters in 1:13 to win the Glyndon, one of the day's trio of features, offered as the third race.

When the field of seven left the Waite stall gates Ellis sent Barrido on top, but Coltiletto rushed By Pass II up along the inside railing to be on top leaving the back stretch.

The effort took too much out of By Pass II and he stopped in the stretch, allowing Barrido to assume command. Robertson then charged on the pacemaker with Dunlin's Lad, to win going away. It was Robertson's second victory of the day and his tenth of the meeting.

She fought it out with YOUR FLAG all through the home stretch and outgamed latter at end. YOUR FLAG made a desperate effort to get to the leader rounding the far turn. ANCHORS AWEIGH, fractious at the barrier and away sluggishly, dropped in behind the field while saving ground at the first turn, secured clear passage on the inside when moving into contention, came around the leaders at the stretch turn, and obtained the lead in the final furlong, and held WAR safe under pressure. Latter outrun for the first seven furlongs, closed with good courage thereafter. LEVANTE broke fast and displayed good speed. He shook off DARK HERO, but faltered in the final drive. RIP VAN WINKLE, in hand for the first five furlongs, fattened out when put to a drive. DARK HERO was bumped and knocked off his stride at the first turn; recovered quickly to force the early running. PETER PETER gained steadily, lost ground at stretch turn where he went out to the middle of the track. FAIR MAN weakened under punishment and DADDY NELSON quit.

Plumage Is Winner Of Lexington Feature

Lexington, Ky., April 22 (A.P.).—The colors of S. S. Combs, member of the Kentucky State Racing Commission, flashed to a popular victory here this afternoon when Plumage led home a select field of 3-year-old fillies in the thirty-eighth running of the Ashland Oaks. Lady Dean, representing the Dixiana Stud of Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit, finished second, and George Collins' Thistle Billie was third.

The fixture, which attracted eight thoroughly tried misses, was marred somewhat when Looney and Jones' Martha Jones, a heavily backed second choice, was left flat-footed at the post. The others were away in good alignment with Lady Dean taking the early lead. Going to the first turn Plumage was closest in attendance with C. V. Whitney's Gosling running third.

Turning for home Jockey Herman Fisher gave Plumage her head and, responding with fine courage, the daughter of Ballot—Glyn gradually wore down Lady Dean to win by a length and a half. The latter led the fast closing Thistle Billie to the wire by three lengths. Gosling weakened badly and finished a thoroughly beaten sixth.

Plumage, on the strength of her good effort opening day and her known mud-running proclivities, was backed into favoritism.

TWO JOCKEYS SUSPENDED AT GRAW

Tilden, Benham Are Grounded for Rough Riding in Races.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22. The stewards have suspended Jockeys E. Benham and R. Tilden for rough riding.

In Tilden's case the suspension was justified, but Benham's was through no fault of his. Eaby, who rode Quorum, the horse Benham is said to have cut off yesterday, afterward admitted that he made the mistake of taking up too sharply behind Benham, which caused the stewards to think Quorum was cut off. However, Benham's suspension stands.

Elmer Trueman, popular Washingtonian, will ship the horses he has in training for Ral Parr, Howard Bruce, Audley Farms and F. Spatela to Pimlico on Friday.

W. P. Gaines, who claimed Bunting Lad for $3,000 yesterday, will ship him with Come On and Bonnie Brae to Aurora, Ill., on Sunday.

C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, favorite for Saturday's $10,000 feature, went a handy mile in 1:42 this morning.

Happy Scot, owned by Cary T. Grayson, of Washington, showed a half in 0:50 2-5.

James Rowe, jr., came down from Red Bank, N. J., to saddle the Greentree Stable's Anchors Aweigh.

H. Van Rae's Perkins cut his face on a screen in front of his stall and it required nineteen stitches to close the wound.

At the conclusion of spring racing in this State J. Burtchell will ship the Flamingo Farm's string to Canada.

U. S. Wishard, of southern Maryland, plans to split his stable at the conclusion of spring racing in this State, half going to Aurora and the remainder to Cleveland.

GEORGETOWN SENDS 14 MEN TO PENN RELAY GAMES

Burke Faces 5 Races in 2 Days

Recent Workouts of Kelleys Bolster Hill-top Hopes.

Quarter, Half Mile, Sprint Medley Are Strongest Fortes.

THEIR prospects having turned much brighter in the past ten days, Georgetown University's trackmen depart today for Philadelphia where tomorrow and Saturday they will compete in the Penn relays, annual Eastern collegiate track and field classic, on Franklin Field.

Coach John D. O'Reilly has entered 14 athletes in the carnival with high hopes of winning or offering stern competition at least in three of the relay races. He figures Georgetown's chances are best in the quarter-mile, half-mile and sprint medley races. O'Reilly also believes his men will make a creditable showing in the one-mile and two-mile varsity and one-mile freshmen relays.

Burke to Be Busy Athlete.

Capt. Vic Burke will take part in all five varsity races. Tomorrow he will run 110 yards on the quarter-mile team and a quarter-mile on the sprint medley team. His assignments for Saturday are 220 yards in the half-mile race, a quarter-mile in the mile race and a half-mile in the two-mile affair.

Georgetown's hopes are bolstered by the recent impressive workouts of Al Kelly, sprinter, and Jim Kelly, middle-distance star. Al Kelly, holder of the intercollegiate 70-yard title, is to compete in the quarter and half-mile relays. Burke and Chuck Carlin and Artie Briggs round out the teams in these races.

Jim Kelly Makes Fast Time.

Jim Kelly, who was clocked in 1 minute 56 seconds for a practice half-mile, last Saturday, will carry the baton in the one and two-mile jaunts and the sprint medley.

The team entered for the freshmen race is composed of John Powers, Maurice O'Reilly, Walter Kowalonsk and John McVoy.

In the field events Bill Slezak will compete in the shot and discus, Bernie Bonniwell will do his stuff in the high jump, while Charles Coffman, a newcomer to O'Reilly's fold, will participate in the discus.

TAKOMA NINE TO OPPOSE CELTICS

Capital City League Champs in Twin Bill at Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, April 22.—Takoma Tigers, champions of the Capital City League in 1930, will be here Sunday for a twin-bill with Charlie Corbett's St. Mary's Celtics in Baggett's stadium. The first game will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

"I was fortunate in scheduling this game so early in the season," declared Charlie Corbett, director of the Alexandrians. "The Takoma lads last season walked through all opposition with ease and should give us a bang-up battle on Sunday."

In copping the District title in 1930, the invaders beat the Bauserman A. C. for the Northern Virginia title and then copped from the Anacostia Eagles for the undisputed title of Washington. Playing in the Montgomery County League the Tigers romped away with all honors.

Jake Powell, minor league player, who had a try-out with the Griffs, began his athletic career with the Tigers. He was their heavy hitter and aided them considerable in annexing all honors. Garrett Waters is business manager of the team and is busy scheduling only the leading clubs for contests. He is out to get his boys in proper shape for the Capital City League getaway.

"Doc" Dreifus will probably hurl for the Green and Gold with Reds Weaver, Kitty Curtis and Pete Ball seeing action before the two contests are over.

Three games have been scheduled by Manager Theodore Beach, of the Nation-Wide Stores Team, for this week. On Thursday the Storemen will clash with the George Mason High Nine on Edward Duncan Field. Saturday will see a game with the Koontz A. C. of Washington on Haydon's Field at 3 o'clock, while on Sunday the Indian Head Cardinals will come here for a contest to be fought out on Haydon's Field at 1 o'clock.

Beach is busy working out an intensive campaign for the Nation-Wide boys and hopes to publish his schedule within the next ten days. Sunday, the Storemen won from Fort Myer A. C., 37-6.

Manager Bill Hammond, of the Virginia A. C., has called an important practice for Guckert's Field this evening at 5:30 o'clock. The Virginians will open their season on Sunday opposing the Fort Myer tossers.

Lee-Jackson High School baseball team won their second consecutive game in the Fairfax County Baseball League yesterday, defeating McLean, 7-6.

The McLean lads tied the score in the seventh frame with a six-run rally. The eight inning saw both clubs battle on even terms. Coming into the final box, Hardin, of Lee-Jackson, singled, Daniels sacrificed, K. Lewis struck out, R. Lewis walked to fill the bases and Sublett then hit a Texas league to right field to tally Hardin with the winning run.

O'Malley hurled for the winners. He allowed five hits, walked two men and fanned twelve. Hansboro, McGarity and Thompson, pitchers for McLean, were pounded by the Lee-Jackson swatters. The standings of the teams follow:

Teams.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Lee-Jackson	2	0	1.000
Falls Church	1	1	.500
McLean	0	2	.000

Johnny Watts, former star baseball player with Bridgewater College, is athletic director of Lee-Jackson High School. He is also playing baseball with the Del Ray Athletic Club in Alexandria.

The Alexandria High School track team will engage Episcopal cinder path warriors in a dual meet on Friday afternoon. Track Coach "Prex" Wilson is training his boys daily for these games.

Three big track meets will be entered by the Twins track men this season.

Villanova Leads Navy When Rain Ends Game

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 22.—Villanova College was leading Navy on the diamond today, 3 to 1, when a downpour of rain broke up the game before the second inning was completed.

Termination of the game was doubly disappointing to Weston Byng, Washington boy, Navy's center fielder, whose slashing home run drive in the second can not be officially recorded. Byng was the first man up in the frame and he gave the first ball pitched a terrific wallop to deep right center. Then the sprinkle of rain gave way to a deluge and after a half-hour wait the game was called off.

The visitors had gathered their three runs in the same session as the result of two hits, a free pass and two errors by the Tars. Rain also called a halt on the Navy-Washington and Lee tennis match soon after it got under way.

N. CAROLINA TRACKMEN WIN

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 22 (U.P.).—North Carolina University defeated Duke in a dual track meet here today, 68 to 58, the outcome hinging on the final event, the half-mile, in which Watkins placed first and Garrett third to give the Tarheels victory.

V. M. I. TEAMS AWAY OVER WEEK-END

Nine Meets Carolina and State; Trackmen at Davidson.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., April 22.—All Virginia Military Institute teams will be on the road this week-end, with no contests carded for Alumni field. While the varsity baseball and track teams are invading North Carolina, the Freshman outfits will be visiting old rivals in the State.

Coach Bill Raftery's ball tossers will take on two Tri-State League rivals, meeting North Carolina at Chapel Hill on Friday and N. C. State at Raleigh on Saturday. The Cadets and Tarheels fought to a 5-5 tie in a free-hitting eleven-inning game at Lexington last week, and another tight game is expected Friday. It will be V. M. I.'s first tilt with the Wolfpack this season, but State will play a return game at Lexington next Wednesday.

Noble and Williams Likely Pitchers.

Hank Noble and Lefty Williams will probably be the starting pitchers Friday and Saturday, with Harold Shomo and Norris Mason on hand for rescue work. Walter Blocker may be replaced behind the bat by Ran Turner in one game or both in case the veteran backstop is still bothered by an ankle injury sustained in the William and Mary game Saturday. In this game the Indians snapped V. M. I.'s winning streak by taking advantage of loose fielding to hand the Cadets an 11 to 9 defeat.

The varsity track men expect plenty of opposition from Davidson College Saturday, especially since the Wildcats swamped South Carolina after holding the strong Duke team to a 2-point margin of victory. The Cadets in going down before Virginia last week continued to score heavily in the running events, with Capt. Ham Smith, Wise, Romm, Bond, and Heald starring, but could capture none of the field events except the javelin throw. Buck Wright's throw of 172 feet was good enough to win in this event, though Coach Read expects Wright to add 10 or 15 feet to this distance later in the season.

The first-year trackmen, nosed out by Virginia yearlings Saturday, will tackle A. M. A. at Fort Defiance, and the ball players after playing the Virginia Freshmen Wednesday will journey to Blacksburg Saturday to meet the V. P. I. youngsters.

Old Dominion Golf Is Delayed by Rain

Hot Springs, Va., April 22 (A.P.).—A driving rainstrom this morning caused postponement until tomorrow of semifinal matches in the Old Dominion women's golf tournament.

T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, arrived late last night for a few days practice before the men's championship at the Cascades Club next week. Other entries received today included those of Billy Howell, Middle States champion, and his teammates on the Washington and Lee University golf team. Among New Yorkers coming here for the men's tournament are Henry M. Crane, president of the Wykagyl Country Club and Robert M. Miller, president of the Nassau Country Club.

London, April 22 (A.P.).—Wales defeated Ireland, 3 to 2, in an international soccer match at Wrexham today.

Berlinger and Coan Lead Strong Penn Track Team

Pair Expected to Win Decathlon and Mile in Annual Carnival; Mile Relay Team Favored to Retain Honors.

NEW YORK, April 22 (U.P.).—University of Pennsylvania track and field stars, headed by Barney Berlinger and Carl Coan, are expected to carry away more than their share of first places when approximately 3,000 athletes, representing 500 colleges and high schools in the United States and Canada, compete in the Penn relay carnival Friday and Saturday.

Berlinger, one of the outstanding all-around track and field stars of the last decade, is counted upon as a sure winner of the Decathlon. On the basis of his performances this spring it is likely that he will set a new high mark in the ten-event point scoring.

Coan's showing during the indoor season ranks him as a heavy favorite to win the 1-mile run. Coan negotiated the distance in 4:13 to beat Ray Conger during the indoor season. It was the best time turned in by any miler.

Both Face Strong Fields.

Both Berlinger and Coan will have to overcome a classy field of entrants to garner their titles. J. C. Deering, of Yale, and O. B. Schoenfeld, of Cornell, are almost rated on a par with Berlinger, while other star performers include T. H. Swartz, of Gettysburg; Walter Hutchinson, of the Ithaca School of Physical Education, and Patrick McPherson, of Lincoln.

While competitors in the mile run have not been indicated, Chamberlain, of Michigan State, and Letts, of Chicago, probably will be on hand to give Coan a battle. Letts, one of the outstanding distance runners in the Western Conference, has come close to world record time in both half-mile and mile trial runs in workouts.

In addition to competing in the mile run, Coan will be anchor man on Pennsylvania's distance medley relay team, winner of the 1930 carnival title. The same men who won the event last year are back in the fold and are expected to come close to the world's mark in winning the event again this year.

Penn's Mile Quartet Favored.

Another Pennsylvania relay team is expected to cop first honors in the mile quartet. The team won the event last year and the same men are back to carry on this season. Ohio State, Harvard and Syracuse are considered as strong contenders for the title, however.

Along with the decathlon, mile run and one-mile relay, the 100-yard dash is expected to be a feature of the thirty-seventh renewal of the Penn games. Heading the entrants will be Al Kelly, of Georgetown, indoor intercollegiate champion; Dearmond Hutson, of Denison, who was second to George Simpson, of Ohio State, last year; Allen East, of Chicago; J. Lewis, of City College, Detroit; Johnny Hass, of Minnesota, and Arthur Watkins of Harvard.

Davis Elected Captain Of Navy's Ring Team

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 22.—Midshipmen John B. Davis, Youngstown, Ohio, class of 1932, has been elected captain of Navy's championship boxing team for next season, and J. E. Leeds, of Jenkintown, Pa., will be the team manager. Davis developed into a star in the middleweight division during the season recently closed. He defeated Moran, Syracuse ace, in the intercollegiate finals.

Other sport team captains and managers, respectively, announced follow: Wrestling, D. C. Goodman, Paynesville, Minn.; J. C. Ford, jr., Fayette, Ala. Gymnastics, H. L. Jukes, Little Rock, Ark.; N. E. Rhoads, jr., New Orleans, La. Swimming, L. M. Austin, Philadelphia; W. C. E. Brown, Knoxville, Tenn. Fencing, J. H. Van Evers, Crosby, Minn.; T. B. F. Langen, Roxbury, Mass. Small-bore rifle, G. C. Hunter, Deadwood, S. Dak.; P. W. Cann, Auburn, Me.

Rival Crews Prepare For Annapolis Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—Coach Bob Haines of the rowing crews of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, now working out on the Severn in preparation for races against the Annapolish Midshipmen on Saturday, has not decided which of his two crews he will start in the varsity brush Saturday. The races will mark the first of the season for the Middies on home waters. Jayvee and 150-pound crews will contest.

The heavier boat, stroked by Richardson, won both tests today on rough water. A heavy wind laced the river throughout the day and the Engineers nearly swamped in the former session when they ventured too far out in the river from the shelter of College Creek.

Late in the afternoon a driving rainstorm struck the Naval Academy eight as it drilled in the creek. Coach Glendon kept the varsity eight out an hour in the rain. Crinkley and Jewett, veterans of last season, who this week replaced Anderson and Hartley at No. 4 and 6, respectively, remained i the big boat. Indications are that the two youngsters or sophomores who rowed against Columbia last Saturday in their debut will be demoted to the Jayvees at least for the clash with Tech.

Trenton Shooter Wins North-South Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., April 22 (U.P.).—Dr. W. H. Matthews, Trenton, N. J., won the handicap event of the annual North and South target tournament here today with a score of 87 from 21 yards. L. B. Smith, Millbrook, N. Y., was second with 84 at 24 yards.

G. C. Walsh, of Merritt, Long Island, handily won the all-around championship shoot with a score of 90, breaking 18 out of 20 birds in a set of ten doubles at 17, 19, 20 and 21 yards. Smith was second in this event, 84.

The tourney concludes tomorrow the two consolation shoots, one at handicaps. A State championship opens Friday and closes Saturday.

JONES FACES WALBERG TODAY

Macks Hope to Even Season Record With Nats.

here, returned to Washington tonight.

Blackburne Sees Game.

Lena Blackburne, former White Sox manager, viewed today's game from the press box. He lives near Philadelphia and is looking around for a job either as big league coach or a minor league manager.

Manush was robbed of a hit opening the fourth when Bing Miller came in fast and cut across just in time to fasten himself on the end of a liner which was ticketed "extra bases."

Manush made a good try for Dykes' liner in the fourth, but failed in his dive for the drive and it went as a double. The blow was not put to any good use by the A's.

Grove and Fischer exchanged compliments in the fourth and fifth. The Nat hurler fanned Grove ending the fourth and then was struck out himself ending Washington's fifth.

After Myer opened with a single in the sixth, Sam Rice, in dodging one of Grove's fast ones, could not get his bat out of the way and a Texas league one-baser to left resulted. This "break" did the Nats no good, however.

When Simmons fanned in the sixth, it was the second time he fell a victim to Fischer's slants, as he also whiffed in the third.

Foxx Works Out Before Game.

Jimmy Foxx worked out with the Mackmen before the game and will be ready to get back in the game within a day or so. This seemed to spur on Phil Todt to better and bigger things, for he came through with two hits today, his double in the first driving home two runs.

Cochrane narrowly escaped injury while chasing a foul off Bluege's bat in the seventh. He raced over toward the Washington dugout and fell head over heels over the rail guarding the steps which lead to the locker rooms. Fortunately for him, he managed to catch himself and prevent a fall down the steps.

Dave Harris pinch hit for Fischer in the seventh. After swinging at two of Grove's offerings, he watched a third strike shoot past him.

Cochrane's home run in the eighth was quite a clout, as it cleared the fence in right center by a baseball mile and against a strong wind, too.

Devitt's Golf Team Beats Western High

Had the Western High golf team been equipped with oars rather than golf sticks in their match with the Devitt Prepmen yesterday, matters might have resulted differently. However, the hapless Westerners had only their ordinary clubs, and although their opponents were similarly equipped, the Tilden streeters emerged victorious in a match unanimously voted "ducky" by the members of both combinations. Groethum, of Western, furnished what fireworks there were when he carried Krewson to the final green before bowing in defeat. Summaries:

Webb (D.) defeated Holzberg (W.), 6 and 5; Cook (D.) defeated Channon (W.), 6 and 5; best ball, Webb and Cook. Krewson (D.) defeated Garrett (W.), 4 and 3; Baer (D.) defeated Groethum (W.), 1 up; best ball, Krewson and Baer, 2 and 1.

League Not Responsible For Salary, Landis Rules

Chicago, April 22 (A.P.).—A baseball league isn't always required to absorb the liabilities of one of its financially disabled clubs, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis ruled today.

The commissioner turned down a plea by Richard Rudolph, former manager of the Waterbury Club, of the Eastern League, who sought to make the league, instead of James V. Gilpin, former owner of the club, pay him $4,225 back salary. Because of the failure of the club, Gilpin decided to give up operation of the team and the Eastern League took charge until the end of the season.

Rudolph contended that inasmuch as the Eastern League took over the club it was liable for his back salary. Commissioner Landis, however, ruled that the league lost money in operating the club for the rest of the 1928 season, and that Gilpin, instead of the league, must pay Rudolph's back salary.

STETSON WALKS THE FIRST TEN MILES!

Little imps hammering away at your feet with nary a pause for the 12 o'clock whistle...so seem your first ten miles in a new pair of shoes. Naturally you have shunned the blandishments of new shoe styles until the last polite moment. This is not an age of martyrs. But never again need you endure the pangs and pains of the "breaking in" period. ...STETSON WALKS THE FIRST TEN MILES. Thanks to a marvelous system of progressive shoe assembly, Stetson so softens and limbers the fine imported leathers that comfort mileage begins with the first step. In a sense, the Stetson Shoe is PRE-WALKED. So that now you can enjoy new style without a sting. To what address will you have your old shoes sent, Sir?

STOCK PRICES DROP TO NEW LOW LEVEL

90 Leading Issues Slump to 120.09, Showing Loss of 2½ Points.

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—The stock market slumped definitely to a new average low for the year today. Both the railroad and industrial groups penetrated their previous minimums, and the composite of 90 issues kept by Standard Statistics Co., dropped 2½ points to 120.9, compared with the previous low of 122.8. The 1930 bottom was 114.7.

Individual declines were not as sharp as in the previous session, but volume increased to 2,700,000 shares, the largest turnover since March 30. The market had one rally—late in the morning—in which some pivotal stocks more than made up earlier declines, but by afternoon prices were again sliding downward. The drop was accelerated by late selling of General Motors, which broke more than 2 points, and by pressure against U. S. Steel. The latter gave some evidence of support before noon, but the buying was apparently short covering and soon evaporated. At its closing price of 126½ Steel common was down a point, and so in new low ground since 1927.

General Motors changed hands in large blocks during the last hour, an indication that a strong pool was losing heart. Rails were spongy most of the day, although net losses averaged little more than a point.

Tobaccos Lose Gains.

Tobaccos, prominent during the rally, virtually surrendered their gains. Automobile shares reflected the weakness of the leader. Bethlehem lost nearly 2 points in response to a forecast that first-quarter earnings on the common were between 5 and 10 cents a share and that a dividend cut, perhaps to a $3 or $4 annual basis, was imminent.

National Biscuit's statement for the first three months, disclosed that the dividend had just been earned on the increased capitalization. Although net income was somewhat better than a year ago, the company's normal rate of increase was not maintained and the stock dropped more than 2 points.

The Westinghouse report, with its first quarter deficit and substantial declines in orders and billings, came after the close. Although the net loss was slightly larger than had been anticipated, the common shares were steady.

The weekly steel reviews reported a decline in operations, showing output at 49 per cent of capacity against 51 per cent a week ago. It was believed operations might be sustained "at somewhere near the present level during the next several weeks." "Steel" noted a feeling in trade circles that the latent demand was sufficient to bring an early fall recovery "of encouraging proportions." The spring improvement has now been lost.

Bill Rate Reduced.

Considerable significance was seen in the reduction of the New York Reserve Bank's bill buying rate for acceptances up to the 45-day maturity.

With the gold movement from France already at $16,000,000 and approximately $15,000,000 coming from South America, it was believed the bank was interested in checking the inflow of the precious metal, which certainly is not needed here. Current supplies of money at New York are embarrassingly large. By making credit still easier—possibly with the aid of a cut in the rediscount rate—European short term funds might be expected to find employment elsewhere.

Commodities were heavy. Wheat, affected by the Australian Bank difficulties and by bearish weather news, lost about a cent, and corn was off an equal amount. Selling of cotton chipped 12 to 14 points from Tuesday's closing quotations.

French franc firmed slightly in a dull foreign exchange market. European rates as a rule were steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 22 (A.P.).—Grain price rallies fizzled out today, the dominating influence finally being stock market unsettlement, together with uneasiness over a big Australian bank failure. Transient upturns earlier in grains were associated with trade reports that a more definite statement of the Federal Farm Board's export policy was probable. The reports suggested that when the 1931 United States wheat crop entered the market, the Farm Board might announce a decision as to whether the board would keep in storage for a year or more the remainder of Government-sponsored old crop holdings.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅛ to ¼ cents lower; corn ½ to 1⅛ down, oats, ⅛ to ⅜ off, and provisions showing 7 to 35 cents decline.

For a while, upturns in wheat prices displayed considerable impetus, more than overcoming initial setbacks, but during the last hour the market dropped fast, almost 2 cents a bushel, and closed near to the day's bottom level. The preceding bulge had been aided by a snappy closing rally at Liverpool, where the finish was 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents up. Foreigners appeared at the moment to have recovered from the recent unwarranted rumors of proposed heavy selling by United States Farm Board allies, some cable messages emphasizing instead relative scantiness of supplies abroad and a likelihood of fairly active buying of North American wheat.

Increased weakness of wheat in the late dealings, however, was in part due to slackness of export demand both for Canadian and United States breadstuffs, total new purchases for shipment overseas being estimated at but 300,000 bushels. A majority of reports, too, indicated that Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas had escaped frost damage. Dry weather conditions over Canada were in some quarters regarded as critical, but had only a transient market influence.

Corn and oats traders took their cue from the action of wheat. Receipts of corn were liberal, and planting was in progress as far north as central Iowa.

Provisions receded with hogs and grain.

BONDS CLOSE LOWER IN CHANGING PRICES

Trading in Industrial Issues Is Spotty; Brazilians Drop One Point.

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—The bond market wavered back and forth today, but the final prices usually represented declines.

Lower levels were general in the industrial group, where a number of new low prices were reached. The Standard Statistics average price for representative industrial issues reached a new bottom level for this year at 84.5, which was largely responsible for another record low consolidated average for industrials, public utilities and railroads at 94.9.

California Petroleum 5s of 1939, Corn Products first 5s, General Theaters 6s of 1940, Gould Coupler 6s, Indiana Limestone 6s, New York Dock 5s, Paramount Famous Lasky 6s, Paramount Publix 5½s, Phillips Petroleum 5½s, Revere Copper & Brass 6s, Shell Union Oil 5s of 1947 and of 1949 and Sinclair Consolidated Oil 7s closed with net losses of 1 point or more after reaching new low prices. The majority of other declines in the industrials were fractional.

Australian Issues Weak.

Weakness in Australian issues featured the foreign group. The two 5 per cent and the 4½ per cent issues of the Commonwealth Government, Brisbane 5s and 6s, and New South Wales 5s of 1957 and of 1958 dropped from 1 to 5 points and the latter two hit new bottom prices. This slump followed the announcement of the closing of the New South Wales Savings Bank.

Brazilian obligations made mixed changes. The 6½s of 1926-57 dropped about 1 point, but the Sao Paulo 7s of 1940 jumped a corresponding amount. Uruguayan 6s were active and lower following the revolt news in that country. German issues were steady to firm. Loans of the United States Government were duller than heretofore and changes in them were slight.

Trading in industrial bonds was spotty. Phillips Petroleum 5½s reflected selling pressure. Shell Union Oil 5s eased off on moderate activity. Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s held steady. All three of these bonds were active but the trading in most issues of this group was restricted.

Utilities Are Quiet.

Public utility obligations were quiet but a narrow, lower trend was apparent. Pacific Gas 5s of 1942 were firm.

Even stock privilege bonds concentrated their changes pretty much among minor fractions although some of the issues were more active than those of other groups. General Theaters 6s, however, dropped about 1 point.

The City Council of Detroit has approved the sale on May 18 of $19,337,000 in bonds due from 1932 to 1951.

Steel Production Drops.

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—The improvement shown by the steel industry in the first quarter has been checked and operations are back approximately to the average of the last quarter of 1930, the Iron Age reported today. Production has dropped to 39 per cent of capacity for the industry as a whole, compared with 51 per cent a week ago and 57 per cent at the March peak.

SAVINGS BANKS PLAN CONVENTION IN MAY

Effect of Unemployment on Industry Will Occupy Part of Session.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The effect of unemployment on savings and industry will occupy an important position in discussion at the eleventh annual conference of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks at the Mayflower Hotel, May 20-22, inclusive.

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York, will address the conference at its opening session when delegates representing $9,500,000,000 of deposits and 12,575,000 depositors will assemble.

Discussing plans for the important gathering, Mr. Bruere said that "two years ago we had almost convinced ourselves that we had found a solution for the age-old problem of maintaining an economic balance which would prevent hard times. He recalled the fact that wages were high, production was thriving, and consumption fully kept up with production. But a cog slipped somewhere, and it became apparent that the golden age for American wage earners was about to be marred by forced unemployment in every branch of industry. Since then, he reminded, we have had 20 months of a vast industrial readjustment, bringing unemployment and hardship.

Efforts of Legislatures.

"We have seen Congress, State and local governments speed up and extend public works to fill the gaps caused by declining private employment," said Mr. Bruere. "Upon every hand we may observe efforts to maintain present wage scales and find work for those now idle. The best thought of American business management is anxious to cooperate with labor in establishing and maintaining a stable industrial order.

"The beginnings that have been made by private and public efforts should be extended in every way possible to overcome and prevent future depressions by organization and intelligent planning of production. Business men of all degrees should cooperate through their trade associations to attack the problem of stabilized industry, in order that we may gain a better mastery over the ebb and flow of commerce."

Other speakers at the first day's session of the conference will be Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who is to discuss "Capital and Its Relation in Industry to Mutual Savings Banks." Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, will speak on "Labor and the Savings Bank." Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers Association and a well-known savings banker of South Bend, Ind., is to complete the day's program.

Educators to Speak.

On May 21, Dr. Payson Smith, commissioner of education in Massachusetts, and Dr. George M. Wiley, assistant commissioner of education in New York, will speak on "Education and the Use of Money" and "The Social Values in Training for Economic Citizenship" as applied to American schools. Louis T. McFadden, chairman of the House committee on banking and currency, is to be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the association that day.

On the concluding day, May 22, representative savings bankers from the various States will deal with problems affecting their operation and investments. As the mutual savings banks now have more than $10,500,000,000 assets, they constitute one of the largest aggregations of capital ever brought together. The safe investment of this money affects about one-third of the population of the United States.

Members and guests of the Ticker Club of Washington were entertained by A. Chester Flather, club president, with a dinner at Chevy Chase Club last night.

A capacity attendance is expected at the spring meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at Columbia Country Club April 29.

G. Bowie Chipman; resident partner in Harriman & Co., has been reelected a director of Van Camp Packing Co., Inc.

"DELIBERATE LIE" IS CHARGED TO SHOUSE BY SENATOR FESS

turned to an article on Chairman Raskob recently published in an Eastern magazine stating that the article was written by Robert Cruise McManus, a newspaperman, and attacks Chairman Raskob on religious, political and other grounds.

Shouse to Issue Reply Here.

"After calling the attention of the assembled diners to this article, Mr. Shouse asserted that the Republican national committee had purchased 10,000,000 copies of the magazine for Nation-wide distribution, and then said:

"'Raskob is one of the most eminent Catholics in America. If he were a Methodist, for instance, would the Republican national committee have ordered these 10,000,000 copies?'"

Mr. Shouse declined to comment last night in New York on Senator Fess' statement. Shouse, who left New York for Washington at midnight, said he would issue a full reply from his headquarters here.

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—Jouett Shouse came out of a huddle with Alfred E. Smith and John J. Raskob on Democratic party finances today and said their immediate objective would be to raise approximately $1,000,000.

The conference among Mr. Shouse, national executive committe chairman; Mr. Raskob, national committee chairman, and former Gov. Smith, the party's presidential candidate in 1928, also was attended by the head of an organization which will assist in the campaign.

Raskob Going to Europe.

Mr. Shouse came here immediately after concluding a trip to the Pacific Coast to confer with Mr. Raskob before the latter sailed Friday for Europe. Mr. Raskob will not return until July 1.

Mr. Shouse said finances were the only subject discussed at the meeting. The national committee, he related, was empowered at its recent Washington meeting to proceed with the raising of funds.

A campaign proposal with a goal of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 was submitted at that time by the John Price Jones organization. Such an estimate, however, Mr. Shouse said today, was based on the entire financing for 1932 and the party leaders at this time will only concern themselves with the raising of $1,000,000. This amount, Mr. Shouse said, would be sufficient to fund the present party debt of approximately $650,000, carry on the organization's work until the 1932 convention, and leave a balance for the new national committee, which will come into being then.

Claims Gain in Sentiment.

Mr. Shouse said he was well pleased with the result of his tour of the Far West and that he found mounting sentiment favorable to the Democratic party.

While Cleveland has been the only city thus far formally to invite the party's 1932 convention, Mr. Shouse said he understood a bid would be made by San Francisco. However, he said he had not discussed the matter with any members of the national committee.

He said he had pleasant memories of the 1920 convention at San Francisco, but the name of that city had been mentioned as a possible site for the 1932 Republican convention, and if it were chosen as such he did not suppose the Democrats would want to meet in the same city.

The money-raising campaign, Mr. Shouse said, will be national in scope.

"We expect to obtain a great deal of this outside New York," he said.

He did not disclose details of the drive, but said the Jones organization would be helpful in making surveys and outlining its course.

Raskob Denies Resignation.

"We want to give the next national committee a balance and also the machinery for raising additional funds," Mr. Shouse said.

Earlier in the day Mr. Raskob reiterated he had no intention of resigning his chairmanship. He said persons asking his retirement were dry Democrats not connected with the national committee and "not one national committeeman or committeewoman has written or asked my resignation."

Mr. Raskob listed the three live issues to be decided in 1932 as prohibition, the tariff and the establishment of an economic balance.

He said business was pickl... but that he did not believe the improvement would benefit Republican chances, for that party "is shot to pieces."

BACKING TRAIN HITS AUTO, INJURING FOUR

Car Wrecked as Motorists Escape Death in Crash on Jones Mill Road.

Four Negroes narrowly escaped death yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a backing freight train on ones Mill road, near Jones Mill Bridge road, North Chevy Chase, and demolished.

John W. Clagett, colored, 35 years old, Sandy Spring, Md., driver of the automobile, and Raymond Thomas, colored, 33, Sandy Spring, were injured seriously. Clam Green, colored, 39, Norbeck, Md., was injured slightly, and Robert Clagett, colored, 26, Sandy Spring, Md., suffered a fractured leg and arm.

The Kensington Volunteer Fire Department rescue squad was summoned by Mrs. John B. Waters, of North Chevy Chase, as well as County Policemen J. S. McAuliffe, J. E. Shoemaker and T. F. Voliten. The injured men were taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring by the rescue squad.

Clagett, driver of the car, said he did not see the train because of the misty weather, and Engineer Frank F. Chadwick, 2909 Tenth street northeast, who was in control of the train, said that he did not observe the automobile. The freight train was backing at the time of the accident. The view of the tracks is obscured by steep banks on each side.

The freight train was an east bound Baltimore & Ohio Railroad freight. The automobile was carried about 60 feet and then rolled over a 10-foot embankment at the side of the tracks.

Bladensburg Fireman Is Injured in Crash

Benjamin P. Clark, a member of the Bladensburg Fire Department, suffered a broken leg yesterday when the fire truck on which he was riding was rammed by another car. Clark was taken to Providence Hospital in the Bladensburg Rescue Squad ambulance.

The truck was going to a brush fire on Old Telegraph road when a car driven by Lewis Haynes, another fireman, ran into it as it slowed up at the Peace Cross. Clark, who was standing on the rear step of the engine, was the only one hurt.

Appointment Not Necessary

There's no need to take a chance! Come where you know you'll get a good picture of yourself, or of the youngster! Our pictures are finished by Jean Sardoy, one of New York's leading artist-photographers, and have that soft, diffused finish so characteristic of higher priced pictures.

Don't Feed Your Furs to Moths

It would be much wiser to put them in our new scientific storage vault where moth life is absolutely destroyed. Before they are placed there, however, expert inspection is given them and all dust is blown out by compressed air. Furs insured against all risks while in Lansburgh's care. For prompt attention
